Luce family saga

You can go home again

by Jeff Nazzaro

You can go home again, sometimes without leaving the house. That's what Parker Street resident Michael Luce has discovered after 18 months of struggle that led triumphantly to Luce's recent signing of a new mortgage on his once seized and auctioned house.

"It's a new lease on life," Luce said Tuesday night from the kitchen of his home. "Not many people can say they've gone through what I have and are living in the same house."

What Luce, his wife Sandra, and their 12 children (nine still live at home) have been through is the foreclosure on and auction of their home and their subsequent eviction.

A year and a half later, as Luce proudly stated, "we bought it back and we're still living here."

The Luce's ran into problems originally in trying to manage two 13% interest rate mortgages on their house. This also coincided with Sandra's pregnancies, including the birth of twins four years ago. Then Mike was laid off.

"I was out of work, [Sandra] couldn't work, and we kind of fell behind," he said.

But now, after months of hard work, persistence, and a lot of help, the Luce's once again own the home they never left.

"It takes a burden off of my wife's shoulders and the kids have a place they can call home," he said.

It wasn't always so comfortable. In July of 1992, the Luce's stared an eviction notice two days from being fulfilled smack in the face.

Then, former Town Crier reporter Brad Parmenter wrote the Luce's story. The response was overwhelming.

"The phone didn't stop ringing for like four days" after the story ran, Luce said.

The Boston Herald then picked up the local story and soon Luce had prominent politicians, including Senator Edward and Representative Joseph Kennedy, helping him.

But it is the people of Wilmington who have left the most positive impression on Luce.

"People in this town have really been supportive," Luce, who has lived at the Parker Street address for 13 years, said.

Two of the more compelling aspects of the Luce's story are their children Jessica, 11, who is diabetic; and nine-year-old Tom, who has a speech impediment. The Luce's would probably have had to give the children up to the state had they been forced out of their home.

"One of the reasons we wanted to stay in Wilmington is because of [Jessica's] school nurse."

The nurse, Sue Roe of the Wildwood School, whose husband is diabetic, "has been great with [Jessica]," according to Luce.

With the persistence of Tewksbury Attorney Robert Scarano and the help of Representative James Miceli, Luce finally held and his family held their ground until a year later - this July - when Luce once again received full-time work as a mechanic/truck driver for a Wilmington firm. And with that, finally came the new mortgage he so ardently sought.

"[The new mortgage] more or less gave me a second chance to prove myself. A lot of people have lost their homes and gone by the wayside."

Now, with two mortgage payments under his belt, Luce is looking to refurbish the home he fought to keep.

"This old house is ours again," he said.

Wilmington's Michael Luce and his family, shown during much tougher times in this photo taken in July of 1992, now are ready to make a new start in a home that was saved with the help of many giving people.

Officials discuss more parking for MBTA commuters

by Jeff Nazzaro

Wilmington residents using MBTA train service may soon have more parking space, as a long standing problem could be eliminated in the near future.

Selectman Michael McCoy and Town Manager Michael Caira met Tuesday afternoon with MBTA Planning Coordinator Ronald Morgan at the proposed site of a 150-space parking lot that would replace an MBTA maintenance building located directly in back of the Wilmington VFW. Selectman Diane Allan and Wilmington Planning Director Lynn Duncan were also present.

The twenty minute to a half-hour discussion yielded hopes that an MBTA-financed parking area with a handicapped accessible train platform could be a reality "within a year," according to McCoy, Wilmington's designee for the MBTA Advisory Board.

McCoy said that chances for a parking lot "look good for the town," and indicated he would like to procure an easement from the MBTA that would give Wilmington residents first crack at any newly available spaces.

Under the guidelines of the easement, as McCoy theorizes, Wilmington would pay the MBTA $1 and perhaps promise snowplowing in exchange for the legal right to use the lot exclusively.

"My concern is that Wilmington residents park first and take the train," McCoy said of the easement plan, something which, according to the selectman, is something which has "been done before."

The MBTA's first step towards providing users of the Wilmington station with adequate parking would be what McCoy described as the "permit process," which would include receiving clearance from the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency (MEPA).

"As far as we know there is no hazardous waste or other environmental problems [at the proposed parking site] so [MBTA officials] think [the permit process should proceed rapidly]," McCoy said.

Morgan estimated that the permit process would take between 120 and 160 days, according to McCoy, after which plans would be shifted to the MBTA's engineering department.

PAC forming to discuss Boutwell

by Jeff Nazzaro

Proponents of a Proposition 2 1/2 override to fund the estimated $432,000 reopening of the Boutwell elementary school have begun the process of forming a political action committee (PAC) even before the Wilmington Board of Selectmen has voted to put it on a town-wide ballot.

In fact, the seeking of such action from the selectmen has not yet been voted on the by the school committee, which had its January 12 meeting canceled due to snow.

But actions towards putting an override to the townspeople have been all but foregone conclusions. The board of selectmen last Monday indicated almost to a member that they favored placing such a measure on the ballot. Selectman Michael McCoy indicated slight reservations.

Likewise, the school committee is expected to approve the request of the selectmen to put the override on the ballot at its January 26 meeting.

"I can't believe anyone would vote against it," Vice-Chairman Paul Palizzolo, who spoke vehemently in favor of an override at the January 10 selectmen's meeting said.

Palizzolo, who asserted at that meeting that he "would not lose" an override vote, while not yet involved, figures to play a prominent role in the coming PAC.

Current coordinators are keeping a low profile while they search for a suitable meeting place, schedule times and work out an agenda.

Listed among chief early goals is to educate the town about the overcrowding problem in the Wilmington Public Schools and why an override is necessary.

The PAC, which is in the preliminary stages of formation, according to one member, is aiming for a February 2 meeting date, where it intends to, among other things, select a name for itself.

Wilmington native killed in car crash

by Jeff Nazzaro

Wilmington native and North Reading resident Meredith Lee, 37, was killed Thursday after the car she was driving collided with the rear of a stopped garbage truck on Rte. 28 at 1 p.m. Thursday, according to Friday's Reading Edition of the Daily Times Chronicle.

Lee's three-year-old son, Maxwell Elia, remains in the Intensive Care Unit at New England Medical Center in Boston, to where he was air-lifted following the fatal crash. He was listed in poor condition as of Tuesday night.

According to fire and ambulance personnel cited in the Chronicle, both Lee and her son were not wearing seatbelts at the time of the accident.

The Waste Management garbage truck, stopped along the side of Rte. 28, was driven by Mike Curley, also a former Wilmington resident. Curley was not cited for any violations.

Lee is the daughter of prominent Wilmington businessman John Elia, owner of Ski Haus and Computer House.

Highway horror show

by Jeff Nazzaro

Winter storms Friday and Monday had an adverse effect on Wilmington roadways, to say the least.

Wilmington police officers responded to 27 motor vehicle accidents in a five day span, from Wednesday to Monday, including seven involving injuries.

The worst came Monday, when frozen rain pelted snow caked roads, producing slick conditions in the late afternoon. Police received (and responded to) reports of 13 accidents, with four involving personal injury, over a three hour time period. Six of those accidents were reported in just a 26 minute span.

Friday posed imposing problems for motorists also, with reports of eight car accidents came in to police in six hours. Two of those accidents involved injuries.

North Intermediate drug assembly

The eighth grade classes at Wilmington's North Intermediate School attended an assembly as part of their health course.

The assembly dealt with the effects alcohol has while driving and was presented by Wilmington Police Officer Pat King. Part of the program included a video tape of actual arrest of a driver under the influence of alcohol. The video was produced by the Wilmington Police Department.

The program concluded with a question and answer period between the students and officer King.

This assembly was the first in a series of assemblies planned as part of the health course., Alcohol, Tobacco and Drug unit.

Wilmington Band Parents

The Wilmington Band Parents and Friends Organization will sponsor a Valentine Dance on Friday, Feb. 11, from 8 to midnight at the Sons of Italy Hall, Ballardvale Street.

The proceeds will help defray the cost of the Wilmington High School Marching Band's trip to Washington DC to march in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Tickets at $7:50 per person will be sold at the door. Call 694-6065 for information.

Learn how to save a child's life

Don't find yourself wondering what to do when a child is choking or suffocating. Appropriate Pediatric and Infant CPR techniques differ from those used on adults - knowing these techniques can mean the difference between life and death.

Winchester Hospital offers Infant and Child CPR course in a two part class from 6 to 10 p.m. January 18 and 25 at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center.

For price information and to register call 617-756-2220.

It's YOUR Money

TAX REFUNDS COMING FOR STUDENTS!

Students should always file a tax return, even if a summer job paid very little. If earnings for the year total less than $3,600, the student is entitled to a refund of all the taxes withheld on the job. If earnings are higher, though, the student could be subject to a non-filing penalty. The I.R.S. is looking for unreported income. Remember that scholarships to cover tuition, fees, books and equipment are not taxable, but that portion of the scholarship that covers room, board or stipend is reportable as income.

Parents can still claim as dependents their children who work, as long as the parents provide more than half the support of full time students up to age 24. In high income families, however, it may be more advantageous to let the student take the personal exemption, since such exemptions begin to be phased out when parents' adjusted gross income tops $162,700.

North Intermediate drug assembly

The eighth grade classes at Wilmington's North Intermediate School attended an assembly as part of their health course.

The assembly dealt with the effects alcohol has while driving and was presented by Wilmington Police Officer Pat King. Part of the program included a video tape of actual arrest of a driver under the influence of alcohol. The video was produced by the Wilmington Police Department.

The program concluded with a question and answer period between the students and officer King.

This assembly was the first in a series of assemblies planned as part of the health course., Alcohol, Tobacco and Drug unit.

Wilmington Band Parents

The Wilmington Band Parents and Friends Organization will sponsor a Valentine Dance on Friday, Feb. 11, from 8 to midnight at the Sons of Italy Hall, Ballardvale Street.

The proceeds will help defray the cost of the Wilmington High School Marching Band's trip to Washington DC to march in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Tickets at $7:50 per person will be sold at the door. Call 694-6065 for information.

Learn how to save a child's life

Don't find yourself wondering what to do when a child is choking or suffocating. Appropriate Pediatric and Infant CPR techniques differ from those used on adults - knowing these techniques can mean the difference between life and death.

Winchester Hospital offers Infant and Child CPR course in a two part class from 6 to 10 p.m. January 18 and 25 at the Winchester Hospital Health Promotion Center.

It's YOUR Money

TAX REFUNDS COMING FOR STUDENTS!

Students should always file a tax return, even if a summer job paid very little. If earnings for the year total less than $3,600, the student is entitled to a refund of all the taxes withheld on the job. If earnings are higher, though, the student could be subject to a non-filing penalty. The I.R.S. is looking for unreported income. Remember that scholarships to cover tuition, fees, books and equipment are not taxable, but that portion of the scholarship that covers room, board or stipend is reportable as income.

Parents can still claim as dependents their children who work, as long as the parents provide more than half the support of full time students up to age 24. In high income families, however, it may be more advantageous to let the student take the personal exemption, since such exemptions begin to be phased out when parents' adjusted gross income tops $162,700.

Town Pulse & Opinion

letters to the editor

Pote's criticism unjustified

Dear Larz:

I was most disappointed to read a lead story in the Town Crier's sports section concerning the MVC Tewksbury-Wilmington girls' basketball game. The subject of the writer's story dealt with a high school varsity game with far too many whistles and fouls called by the game officials.

To begin with, I don't have a problem with reporting the facts that the game officials called a high number of fouls, that the game didn't seem to "flow" nicely and that it lasted a long time. That number of fouls does seem high and would be an interesting footnote to a game summary.

I do have a major problem with the writer's opinions, criticisms, and comments which were negative to the game officials and inaccurate on several other points.

As you know, my experience with the game of basketball is lengthy and covers many aspects. I've played the game in high school and college, served as a head coach at both the high school and college level for 17 years, a parent of two boys who played high school basketball, a high school administrator, officiating high school games for over 27 years, active participant in the MIAA's state basketball committee, and most important to this issue, serving the last 11 years as the MVC and MIAA North Boys' Tourney assigner of officials. I am the person who assigns all officials to the MVC boys' and girls' varsity basketball games.

I mention my background so that readers will know that I am qualified to make the following observations. I am not sure that your writer, James Pote, is experienced in this area.

My first concern is that there is a growing feeling among players, coaches, and fans that the game officials have control of the outcome of games. There is also a feeling that game officials can favor a team in a contest.

Of all the roles that I have had in this game, officiating is by far the hardest. Officials are presented with thousands of decision making moments in a game. Their judgments are only as good as their angle and view of the play.

Sometimes a person sitting in the top row of the bleachers might have a better view of a questionable issue. Officials are trained in the thinking of "advantage-disadvantage" situations so that there are contact situations where the whistle should not blow.

Game officials also can have good and bad games as players and coaches. They are human and may even have to referee a game with a slight injury, sickness, a problem at work on their mind, or an important family issue in their heart. Finding a qualified replacement is even harder than the original assignment.

This Tewksbury-Wilmington game was played on only the second slate of games in the MVC. The conference schedule began January 4 and it bothers me that he could refer to his observation that most coaches are unhappy about the officiating in the MVC.

The public needs to know that there is an evaluation instrument in place for the head coaches to evaluate officials in the MVC. There is also the opportunity to recommend new officials each year.

Last year the Tewksbury coach rated both officials #1's which is the highest on our scale. Last year's Wilmington coach on the Comments section of the evaluation instrument made the remarks "Most of the officials were very good this year." Neither coach on the New Officials section recommend any names. In fact, only three of the 10 coaches did recommend any new people.

What purpose did the writer have for mentioning one official by name? The assignments I make are as a team of two officials. I expect them to work as a unit and not individually.

As for the $48 game fee, officials do not receive any travel allowance for games worked a great distance away or nearby. They are expected to be at their game sites early, pay their association dues, buy their own equipment, attend their association's meetings and interpretations, study the rule book, keep up with MIAA regulations, work scrimmages, and most importantly, control and work the game effectively.

Your writer refers to giant strides in girls' basketball in the MVC. This conference has long been respected as having strong reams. A trip to Haverhill, Methuen, Chelmsford, Andover or even a history lesson in Tewksbury will indicate the years of quality in the MVC.

He refers to a shot clock being put in. The girls have had a 30 second shot clock for years dating back to well before the times Rick Cooke used to gulp all the Gatorade at halftime of our games.

As for apparent new rivalries, the MVC hasn't had a change in league membership for some time now. I firmly believe, in fact, that the conference does need some new members. A bigger conference would allow for a fairer schedule in all sports.

There is a big difference between writing a sports story about a game your sister played in and officiating the game. Sports writers can proof read their grammar and content long after the game is over, while the game officials are stuck with their instant judgments.

Sincerely,
Anthony J. Romano

Editor Rick Cooke responds:

I know and respect Dave Magee both as a person and as an official. After having seen the game that James Pote commented on, I'd have to say that the Town Crier sports writer has a legitimate opinion in this case.

I would like to know why there is an unwritten rule that high school referees can not be named and criticized in a local newspaper. Players and coaches make mistakes and have bad games, even at the high school level, and are named as not having a particularly good day.

We all would like to continue doing the things that we love until the day we die. Unfortunately, people slow down and people are replaced or retire as they grow older. I'm not saying Dave Magee is ready for the referee retirement home. What I am saying is that James Pote asked a legitimate question in his column that I stand behind even though I might not be in 100 percent agreement.

Pote responds to the Sports Comment feedback with another comment in this week's Town Crier sports section.

letters to the editor

Let's talk about the issues

Dear Larz:

In response to the letter of George Hodges where he felt compelled "to get the record straight," may I first comment how I would prefer to use the pages of this newspaper to discuss more important issues than "collected" vs. "certified" vs. "submitted" signatures on nomination papers. However, I can not allow his misrepresentation to go unchallenged. First, the thank you I wrote to the many volunteers who went throughout Reading collecting signatures was just that - a thank you note.

It was a public expression of my appreciation to those volunteers who assisted me by going door to door in rain, snow and cold weather to obtain the necessary signatures to complete the first requirement of the Special Election which assures my name will appear on the ballot.

In addition, I personally went door to door in both North Reading and Wilmington to meet voters and to ask for their support. I specifically came to these towns to demonstrate that I am committed to work for all the constituents of the District and to be accountable to all of its citizens.

A Special Election, brought about by the November resignation of incumbent Mr. Krekorian, is by its very nature an accelerated process. Of course,this is as it should be, since in the interim we have had no voice in the State House while important issues are being debated.

With the calling of this Special Election, the primary election was set for February 1 and the election on March 1, and nomination papers had to be in by December 21. Because I was at the University of Arizona attending my son's college graduation ceremony when the nomination papers were due, the process was handled by a member of my campaign staff. He actually submitted more names than were required and I would also like to thank him for a job well done.

Hopefully, Mr. Hodges, next time you need to get the record straight you will come to me instead of the pages of the local newspaper. I will always be straight with you as I have been with all the people I interact with in my private as well as my professional life.

However, since the issue was raised, may I take this opportunity to again thank the 653 people (certified or uncertified names) from the towns of Reading, North Reading and Wilmington (Precinct 6) who signed my nomination papers and to ask them and all the voters of the District to consider my candidacy then vote for me in these coming elections.

Sincerely,
Sandy Trainor
Candidate for State Representative
21st Middlesex District

This "geezer" is solid official

Dear Larz:

I take offense that James Pote named the "geezer" he feels should "be put out to pasture." This "geezer" is one of the most respected college and high school officials in Massachusetts. He is one of the first officials chosen for any MIAA tournaments. I'm confident that the "geezer" has participated in more tournament games than Mr. Pote has had breakfasts.

As far as 59 fouls being called, the title of your sports comment should read "come on coaches, teach the girls how to play the game" and not "come on guy, let the girls play the game."

I have participated in sports as a player for 28 years and I have been an official for four years, Wilmington's umpire in chief for Major Little League for three years and sit on the executive board for the Greater Lowell Baseball Umpire Association. I am 44 years old and have just begun to realize the necessary judgement and psychology involved in sports.

Maybe we should let the coaches, kids and parents who are bored have whistles and call their own games. There is much more to officiating a game than doing as you say "keeping up with the ebb and flow of the game." Hypothetically, if half of the 59 fouls were legitimate Mr. Pote, then these girls would be hard pressed to go on to an athletic college scholarship.

These are formative years for these players, Mr. Pote. The officials do not teach the rules, they enforce them. If you think for one moment that an official is going to keep his whistle still so that you won't be bored, think again.

Finally, your exaggeration "but now we have to sit and hear a whistle every time two girls come within two feet of each other" does not go unnoticed after your opening comments, "well, I'm not one to complain about officiating." Might I suggest, Mr. Pote that you are bored with your job.

Respectfully,
Ken Meuse

Ford home

Tradition says this home at the head of Middlesex Avenue was constructed in 1720 by Cadwallader Ford I. That date is possibly too early. Ford built the large front section. The large rear part was constructed about 1910 by Caleb Harriman, as well as the sun room on the west side. The tree at right, probably cut down about 1960 may have been standing when the Ford home was constructed. There is a tradition that it was on the boundary line of Nod.

When was the Ford house built

by Capt. Larz Neilson

One of the historic homes of Wilmington is the Brooks home, at the northern end of Middlesex Avenue.

Tradition, right or wrong, says that Cadwallader Ford built that home in 1720, on Lot No. 2, of the last survey of the Land of Nod. Tradition also says there was a bush, growing on the boundary of Nod, which was not cut down but was allowed to grow.

The bush grew to become a tremendous tree. Caleb Harriman, he who bought the home about 1910 is believed to have had an artist paint a picture of the tree. It was finally cut down, c. 1960.

Ford was born in Londonderry, Ireland. He is believed to have been educated in law, and to have emigrated to the Colony of Massachusetts Bay in 1718-20. He is believed to have been engaged in a lawsuit about land in the Land of Nod.

There does not seem to have been such a lawsuit. There was one in Cambridge in 1706.The Town of Charlestown was supposed to be the owner of the 3,000 acres in the Land of Nod.

As a result of that trial, Capt. Joseph Burnap of Reading was employed to survey the 3,000 acres of Nod. He did that in 1718. His survey showed that Charlestown did not own all of Nod.

The lawsuit had been instituted by Judge Sewall, he of the Salem Witch Trials. As a result Judge Sewall became the owner of Lot One, as marked off by Capt. Burnap, 300 acres. The Harnden Tavern is today on that Lot One.

Sewall sold his land in 1723 to Samuel Dummer, a brother of the Lt. Governor of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay. Dummer lived on his property and about 1725 was appointed Sheriff of Middlesex County. When Wilmington was established he had a chair in the Meeting House which was equal in height to that of the Pastor.

By being named Sheriff it was Dummer who named the new towns in Middlesex County. Wilmington was named for an important person in the British Parliament. Tewksbury was so named because King George II, while he was Prince of Wales, had assumed the title of Duke of Tewksbury.

Cadwallader Ford bought Lot No. 2 of the Land of Nod, probably after the date in which Dummer had purchased Lot No. 1, in other words 1723 or later.

Another date in the Reading history shows that Cadwallader Ford and Mary Jenkins were married on December 15, 1725.

Cadwallader died Nov. 3, 1790 at the age of 87. Mary died May 29, 1790 in her 84th year. So say the Wilmington records.

If the Cadwallader Ford house was constructed in 1720, Cadwallader would have been 17 years old, and Mary 15 at that time.

Were they married at that time? At what time was the Cadwallader Ford home built?

Danish people saved 8000 Jewish lives

by Capt. Larz Neilson

Currently in Boston a film called "Schindler's List" is being advertised. Created by Steven Spielberg it is a movie which the Wall Street Journal reports is "outside the ordinary, or even extraordinary."

The film portrays a hedonistic German industrialist who saves the lives of more than a thousand Jews from the Nazis of Adolf Hitler.

A real life Schindler's List occurred in World War II in Denmark. The Danish people saved a total of 8,000 Jews from the Nazis. It was a co-operative program among the Danes who had been given information by some non-Nazis in the German Army.

Denmark, a country with a very small army, was seized by the Nazis shortly after Britain entered World War II after the Germans had invaded Poland. An agreement was forced upon the Danish government. One item, which later assumed importance was that King Christian X could have the Danish flag, "Dannebrog" flying above his castle. One day the Nazi flag was flying where the Dannebrog should be.

Christian demanded that the Nazi flag be taken down. The German general refused. "Then," said the king, "I will send a soldier to take down that flag."

"That soldier will be shot!"

"That soldier will be me!" Christian told the general.

The German Nazi flag was taken down.

Life was not pleasant during the German occupation. For the Nazis the real surprise was to realize that the Danes had no idea of how many Danes were not attending the Lutheran church - there was no knowledge about the number of Jews.

That to the residents was not a matter of any importance. The Nazis passed a regulation that every Danish person who was a Jew had to wear a Star of David on his or her clothing, in a prominent place. That star is the six pointed one that is frequently to be seen on Jewish houses of worship.

Next morning King Christian appeared, wearing a Star of David. Everyone in Denmark shortly was also wearing the Star of David!

But the Danes learned that the Nazis had somehow taken a census, and the Nazis had every Jewish family on a list. This they learned from German soldiers who were not Nazis. It made the Danes aware of the dangers the Jewish people were facing.

There came a day when the Danish people learned that the Jews were to be seized and transported to Germany. The people of Denmark, very quietly, reacted.

Eight thousand Danish Jews were transported across Denmark, secretly, to the east coast ports. They were put on boats, manned by Danish volunteers and secretly ferried to Sweden. Not one life was lost. When the Nazis became aware of what had happened there were no Jews in Denmark.

The date was January 11, 1944.

On January 11, 1994, 50 years to the day after that event there was a ceremony in the office of the Danish Consul General, in New York City. This writer is not aware of what exactly happened, but the Danish person who was on the receiving end of that ceremony was one of the Jews who had been transported to Sweden, 50 years before.

Sandy Hennessy scored 16 points against Wilmington

The January 25, 1984 edition of the Town Crier of Tewksbury noted that:

Retired Board of Appeals member Robert Greenleaf was pictured as he accepted two citations from the board; one from the governor and one from the House of Representatives. Also in the photo were Louis Carciofi, Mary Perkins, Bruce Gordon and William Schuellein.

A week after they denied Edward Johnson a license to sell used motorcycles, from a multi tenant building, located at 464 Woburn Street, selectmen voted to consider the matter a second time. The possibility of issuing a temporary three month license was discussed, but several members of the board wanted to delay any action as "the residents of the area were not present."

Sandy Hennessy was pictured as she opened up the Tewksbury offense in the basketball game vs Wilmington. Sandy ended the game with 16 points.

Douglas Davidson was among the students nominated for appointment to United States Service Academies by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

At Miller's Gymnastics Training Center... Gymnastics is Fun!

Whether you're talking about an out-of-shape student who needs a fun fitness program, or an athlete who needs to develop strength and flexibility, the goal of Miller's Gymnastics is to make kids physically fit! Gymnastics is a great way to develop strength and flexibility, as well as coordination, self-esteem and confidence.

"This is what we do, seven days a week," say Charles and Lauren Miller, owners of Miller's Gymnastics Training Center, Inc. "Lots of people do gymnastics, but our program is geared to learning gymnastics, not just playing. We want to see every child be the best gymnast they can be. For some that may mean serious competition, for others, just fun and recreation."

Together, the Millers have thirty-five years of national and international experience teaching gymnastics. They are safety certified, and are professional members of the United States Gymnastics Federation. All their classes are grouped by students' age and ability. Class sizes are small: 3-4 year olds are limited to six per class, other classes are limited to eight. Currently their students range in age from 18 months to 35 years, and run all levels from beginner classes through competitive teams. In fact, the 10-12 year old girl's team will be traveling to Arizona in February for the Fiesta Bowl National Invitational Meet.

Miller's Gymnastics is located at 20 Carter Street, in Tewksbury, inside The NorthMeadow Club. If you have any questions, or would like a program schedule, call Charles or Lauren at 851-6646.

Ann Panagiotopoulos of Anastasia's Curtains and Gifts

In a world of fast food, quick copies, and rush, rush, rush... Anastasia's is proud to stand apart.

Do-it-yourself shops can't compare with Anastasia's. Ann Panagiotopoulos, owner of the shop, is pleasant, and patient, and willing to do whatever it takes to help you choose what's right for you and your home. Some customers bring wallpaper samples, swatches and measurements to the shop, others take advantage of Ann's free in-home consultations. Whichever they choose, her customers get high-quality products, "at a fair price," says Ann, "and when I run a sale, you know it's a good price!"

Anastasia's Curtains and Gifts carries beautiful ready-made and custom curtains and draperies, shades (verticals, blinds, duettes, pleated), a full line of Kirsch drapery rods and hardware, Waverly products (pillows, bedding ensembles, toppers), Heritage lace, lamps, carpets, oriental rugs, paintings, accessories and more. They also cut shades. In addition, the shop carries a wide selection of collectibles including Enesco's Cherished Teddies, Calico Kittens, and Maude Humphrey Bogart; Willets Amish Heritage Collection and Star Trek; Lladro Golden Memories; Wimbledon Porcelain Dolls; Louisville Stoneware; and Disney music boxes.

Anastasia's is located in Tewksbury at Claddagh Place, 1215 Main Street, Suite 119. They're open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday & Saturday from 9am - 6pm, and Thursday from 9am-8pm. Stop by... you'll be glad you did!

Town Center Committee meets Jan. 27

The Town Center Committee will hold a public informational meeting January 27 at 7 p.m. in room 9, Town Hall, 121 Glen Road, Wilmington to solicit input on proposed zoning changes relating to commercial development in Wilmington.

The recommendations are based on the Route 38 Corridor Study completed last year through funding by the state and the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority. The consultant David Dixon/Goody Clancy worked with a local task force to prepare a plan which would guide future development on the Route 38 Corridor. The major goal of the study was to improve the corridor's commercial vitality while enhancing the character of the town. The study concluded that current zoning practices significantly limit the Route 38 corridor's economic development potential and its public fiscal value in terms of tax revenue.

The basic concept of the proposed rezoning is to allow businesses and property owners more flexibility, while providing for greater control by the town. Major zoning recommendations of the study that will be discussed are:

*Create a new commercial district, the Central Business District,to replace the High Density Business (HDB) district and reorganize allowable uses.

*Adopt dimensional regulations for the Central Business District which will encourage a workable town center, rather than strip commercial development.

*Allow restaurants, hotel/ motels, auto service stations and vehicular dealerships in the General Business district by Special Permit if and only if they can meet certain conditions. The conditions will be discussed at the meeting.

*Delete the requirement to provide seating for at least 50 people in limited service restaurants. However, the special permit could set a maximum number of seats as part of the special permit conditions.

*Reformat the parking regulations such that they are clear and easily understood and at a level consistent with regional norms.

*Allow multi-family housing in the central Business district by special permit if and only if the proposed development can meet certain conditions. The conditions will be discussed at the meeting.

The purpose of the informational meeting is to receive input from residents, businesses and property owners early in the process prior to drafting a proposed zoning article for Annual Town Meeting. The intent is to submit a zoning amendment for the Annual Town Meeting Warrant that reflects the needs and character of the Town of Wilmington.

Anyone interested in commercial development is encouraged to attend as the proposed zoning changes will affect all commercial development as well as the Town Center.

Please contact Lynn Duncan, Planning and Conservation Director, at 658-8238 if you have any questions or would like additional information prior to the meeting.

Protecting the Mystic Valley Amphipod

by George R. Allan

If someone asked you if you were in favor of protecting the bald eagle, the overwhelming majority would answer - yes. On the other hand, if you were asked about protecting the Mystic Valley Amphipod, the results would be dramatically different. Indeed, most people would say, "the Mystic Valley what?" The little known Mystic Valley Amphipod is a freshwater crustacean that is common in eastern Massachusetts. The Endangered Species Act protects it, the bald eagle, and nearly 800 other animal and plant species.

In 1973 the Endangered Species Act was originally enacted. The U.S. Secretary of the Interior determines which species are endangered or threatened. The Act prohibits any federally funded project that would affect the listed species. It also can stop any activity on private property that would threaten the feeding, habitat, or breeding of these species.

There have been some well publicized confrontations involving endangered species. Witness the dam in Tennessee that was stopped in the 1970's by the snail darter. Recently, protection of the northern spotted owl has caused consternation among logging companies in the northwest part of the U.S. Surprisingly, even the firestorms that swept parts of California last year have been linked to an endangered rodent. A recent TV program interviewed residents of the area who complained about the federal government's prohibition on clearing and tilling an area around their homes to serve as a firebreak.

The U.S. Fisheries and Wildlife Department feared that the clearing activities would disturb the burrows of the kangaroo rat. Ironically, the resulting fires destroyed the homes of humans and the endangered mammal. It is this type of attitude on the part of the government that disturbs many people. Common sense can be lost in a wave of environmental zeal.

There are those who believe we are protecting too many species and others who feel the current legislation does not go far enough. A major legislative battle is looming this year in Congress over the re-authorization of the Endangered Species Act.

Mass. Congressman Studds is proposing to increase by five fold the number of species to be protected. Environmentalists supporting this legislation say that strengthening the act would protect species and their habitat before the situation becomes critical.

On the other side of the debate are the legislators who want to make it harder to list plants and animals as endangered species. Their rival Bill would also require the government to compensate private owners when protection of endangered species limits the uses of their land.

As with most environmental issues, a balance needs to be struck between concern for the ecosystem and man's activities. Those who raise reasonable concerns should not be labeled by environmentalists as un-patriotic.

During the life of this planet, thousands of plants and animals have come and gone in a natural evolution. Do we now need to protect every species that currently exists? The expected debate in Congress this year will address this question.

Town Census mailed

The Wilmington Town Clerk's office has mailed the annual town census and asks residents to complete and return them as soon as possible. The census contains important information concerning Precinct changes that will take effect with the Town Election of April 16, 1994.

Anyone who does not receive a census form or who has questions is asked to contact the town clerk's office at 658-2030. A true and accurate census is an asset to the community.

Community Schools sign-up

Wilmington Community Schools will accept phone in registration through January 28 for it's adult education program.

Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at 658-7669 or 694-1027. Classes are scheduled to begin January 31.

Courses will focus on computer/business skills, financial strategies, health and fitness, family and parenting issues, arts and crafts, as well as many other special interest workshops.

Registration forms with course descriptions may be picked up at Wilmington Memorial Library, Town Hall or Wilmington High School. Call either of the above numbers for more information.

Late sign-up for adult classes

Late registration will take place this week for nearly three dozen course offerings in the Adult Education Program at Shawsheen Tech. Register in the school cafeteria from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday. Evening School director Ray Elden said "there are many openings; most classes have a couple of places available, so don't hesitate to sign up at the last minute." Spring classes begin the week of January 24 and end April 7. Courses typically meet twice a week (Monday/Wednesday or Tuesday/Thursday) from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. for about 10 weeks for a total of 60 hours. Career programs usually offer 100 or more hours of training and may meet more than one semester.

With courses in everything from computers to cosmetology, including Working with Windows, P-Cad, and Manicuring, as well as Medical Billing, Basic Welding, Nurse's Aide, and several in desktop publishing, there is a wide variety of people seeking to upgrade skills, begin a new career, or explore an avocation.

For more information, call Monday through Thursday, 6:30 to 10 p.m., 667-2111. Brochures are available at local libraries, town halls, and supermarkets, and at Shawsheen Tech.

Thinking Money

Planning for that big college expense

by Donald Sommese

It's the year 2006 and it's one of the proudest moments in your life - junior's going off to college. Congratulations! But by the time you hear "Pomp and Circumstance" four years later, you will have spent up to as much as a cool $300,000 for tuition and expenses from that four year private college.

The lesson is simple: If your child is going to pursue a college education, you probably need to start pursuing a second investment strategy now.

What Price Knowledge? The Rising Cost of Higher Education

Here's how the numbers add up. The Federal government and the American Council on Education estimate that the cost of higher education has risen an average of 9.8 percent every year for the past 10 years. At that rate, by the year 2006, one year at a state university could cost over $29,000, up from an average of $8,000 last year, and one year at a private university could cost nearly $70,000, up from $18,600 last year.

There is good reason to believe that the price of higher education will continue to rise at a healthy clip. Schools face rising costs to remain competitive and the population of college age Americans is shrinking steadily. These factors mean that the costs of expanded technology and salary increases will be distributed over a smaller number of students.

What's the best way to prepare? Get a jump on the costs by beginning your financial planning now! The first step is estimating the amount and the timing of your future payments for higher education. Then graduate from step one and examine the sound investment alternatives that are open to you and your child's future.

A Tutorial on Funding your Child's College Education

Most college funding plans have their foundation in relatively safe, growth oriented instruments that are invested for the long term. The key is to find investments that provide as high a return as possible, given the desire for reduced risk. Here are just some of the investments you may wish to add to a college funding portfolio:

U.S. Treasury Strips zero coupon bonds. The deeply discounted purchase price of these instruments makes them affordable - plus they offer the highest credit quality available, the "full faith and credit" of the federal government. (Note that these instruments are subject to market fluctuation if sold prior to maturity). Another advantage: Since Treasury Strips zeros are available in a wide range of maturities, you can time a "laddered" portfolio of these investments to coincide with college tuition payments, staggering maturities over a four year period.

As their name implies, zero coupon bonds make no periodic interest payments. Instead, they are purchased at a deep discount from their full face value and interest compounds over the life of the bond until maturity, when the bond holder is paid the full face amount.

Mutual funds. Mutual funds own a pool of securities and sell interests in the pool to investors, giving them the benefits of a diverse portfolio and professional management. Every fund has a specified investment objective and buys and sells securities accordingly. The safest funds invest in U.S.government securities. If your risk tolerance is slightly higher, you might consider a fund that invests in bluechip stocks.

The cost of mutual fund shares and the price you receive when you sell shares varies according to the market value of the underlying securities. When it's time to make a tuition payment, you would sell shares of the mutual fund at the current market price of the fund.

Unit trusts A unit trust also sells shares in a pool of professionally selected securities designed to meet a specific investment goal. However, unlike mutual funds, unit trusts have maturity dates and the underlying securities generally remain the same for the life of the trust. As with zero coupon bonds, the maturity of unit trust investments gennerally can be timed to match expected tuition payment dates. However, investors should be aware of the fact that in some unit trusts, owing to the nature of those investments, maturity will occur prior to the original termination date.

Study Today's Gifting and Tax Opportunities

To reduce the tax liability on any type of investment earmarked for college, consider placing the securities into a custodial account that meets the requirements of either the Uniform Gift to Minors Act (UFMA) or the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (UTMA).

By depositing securities into these types of accounts, you can take advantage of low tax rates generally available to minors. Since there are limitations to this, depending on yearly income and age of child, you should consult your tax advisor before opening an account of this type.

Interest on U.S. government securities, such as Treasury zeros, is exempt from state and local taxes. However, the federal government taxes the accreted interest on Treasury zeros each year as ordinary income. Some mutual funds and unit trusts are designed to provide tax advantaged or tax free income by investing in securities such as U.S. Treasuries or municipal bonds.

However, you may prefer to purchase a mutual fund or unit trust that invests in securities, such as equities that are likely to provide greater growth potential.

Since both mutual funds and unit trusts are sold pursuant to a prospectus, it is important that you carefully read and understand the contents of the prospectus before investing in a particular fund or trust.

Kathi Donato earns CRS designation

Kathi Donato, a Wilmington realtor, has been awarded the certified residential specialist (CRS) designation by the Residential Sales Council of the Realtors National Marketing Institute, an affiliate of the National Associate of Realtors.

Those receiving the CRS Designation must complete the required courses offered by the Residential Sales council and must demonstrate specific expertise in applied residential real estate marketing. Less than three percent of all Realtors hold this designation.

Kathi Donato is a sales associate with RE/MAX Hearthstone Realty at 11 Middlesex Avenue in Wilmington. She is a member of the Eastern Middlesex and Greater Lowell Board of Realtors. A member of the Women's Council of Realtors, Eastern Middlesex and Greater Lowell Multiple Listing Services and a member of the Eastern Middlesex Management Committee.

Sheila DiLeo earns Top Producer Award

Realtor Sheila DiLeo of North Reading's Colonial Manor Realty was recently honored as that office's 1993 Top Producer. Having generated the highest volume of sales, Sheila was presented her award on December 19 by the Colonial Manor Realty owners Bobbie Botticelli and Rick Nazzaro.

Sheila is one of the industry's hardest working and most dedicated members. Her genuine concern for her clients and customers enables her to perfectly identify their needs and assist them professionally in any situation.

With over eight years of dedication to her profession, Sheila is always ready to serve new clients and customers - whether it be to help find a first home or to help sell a house. Sheila is a member of the Eastern Middlesex Association of Realtors, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, the National Association of Realtors and the Multiple Listing Service. In addition to her generous donation of time and service to many charitable organizations, Sheila sits on the Association's Board of Directors.

A longtime resident of Wilmington, many know Sheila and her husband Mario best as King Lion and First Lady of the Wilmington Lions Club.

Retirement, estate planning

The American Red Cross, Merrimack Valley Chapter will host a free seminar entitled "Retirement & Estate Planning" on January 27 from 10 a.m. to noon at Wilmington Memorial Library.

Attorney Ted Beasley, vice chairman of the Elder Law Subcommittee and chairman of the Revocable Trust subcommittee of the American Bar Association is scheduled to speak as is noted author and financial planner Michael Palmer, RFP. Both speakers have lectured and taught extensively on preparing senior citizens and those facing retirement on the current changes in legal and financial regulations and the strategies necessary to help create financial security in retirement.

Each attendee will be eligible to receive one free hour of private consultation. Seating will be on a first come, first served basis. Call 458-6385 for reservations.

Sen. O'Brien hours

State Senator John D. O'Brien (D-Andover) has announced dates for January office hours. Sen. O'Brien will hold evening office hours in Tewksbury at the Town Hall, located on Main Street, Tuesday, Jan. 18 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The senator looks forward to meeting his constituents. All inquiries should be directed to Sen. O'Brien's office, the State House, Room 520, call 617-722-1612.

The MWRA sewer problems

by Capt. Larz Neilson

Water and sewer bills in the City of Woburn are the lowest of any community in the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority system according to a recently published account in the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle. Executive Director Douglas E. MacDonald recently visited the staffs of the Daily Times Chronicle and discussed many aspects of the problems he and his staff face.

The MWRA has no intention, he said, of interfering with the local communities within the system on how they assess their residents on water and sewer costs. The MWRA is faced with the tremendous problem of clearing Boston Harbor of sewage accumulated during a period of over 100 years.

The primary reason why Woburn residents pay less, MacDonald said, is because the homes in Woburn are not metered. The business firms in the city are. This allows the city to shift some of the costs for water to the business and industrial properties.

The Woburn method is similar to a tax classification. Tax classification in Massachusetts is a state approved formula which allows communities to shift a part of their property to the commercial properties.

Because a part of Woburn's residential water and sewer costs are picked up in real estate taxes it means those costs are tax deductible,where the actual sewer and water fees are not.

Other communities are now examining how they assess their rate payers. They are faced with cost increases which could be really large by the time the Boston Harbor construction project is concluded. They seek to include all or some of the costs in real estate taxes, which are deductible from federal income taxes.

Winchester is a community which is now re-evaluating how to assess their water and sewer costs.

More subsidies

The MWRA is now working closely with federal and state legislators, trying to get more help for the MWRA ratepayers.

In the 1994 federal budget $100 million has been earmarked for the Boston Harbor project. The state of Massachusetts chipped in nearly $20 million, to lower the real estate taxes, which are deductible from federal income taxes.

Under the Clean Water Act the federal government had provided 75 percent of the construction costs for similar sewage and water treatment projects in the rest of the country, MacDonald said.

Under that program states were required to provide 15 percent of the project's cost in matching funds, thus leaving only 10 percent to be absorbed by the ratepayers.

But, beginning in 1987 the federal government cut back, and eventually eliminated such grants. This means that the MWRA ratepayers are faced with the total $3.5 billion construction cost for the project.

MacDonald expressed a hope that the senators and congressmen of Massachusetts would be able to persuade the federal government to provide additional funds, beyond the $100 million committed for this year.

The MWRA, he said, is also taking steps to try to downsize the original plans.

Part of the original plan was to construct massive caverns at Deer Island, to act as a reservoir for the purpose of capturing surcharges and overflows from the sewer system, during massive rain storms. That part of the project was priced at $1.3 billion.

The MWRA is now reevaluating that proposal. The thought is to cut it back, or maybe even eliminate it entirely.

The reservoirs were needed because of inflow and infiltration into the sewer system which were essentially leaks into the sewer lines. Heavy rains of large volume would pour into the system, doubling and tripling the normal flow. Many MWRA communities are working on finding, eliminating or reducing such leaks. But they cannot be eliminated entirely.

Four communities, Boston, Cambridge, Somerville and Chelsea, have drainage systems which are tied into the sewer system. All drain water in those systems is automatically funneled into the sewers. They thus cause problems for the treatment plant at Deer Island.

MacDonald believes it is probably impossible to separate the systems.It would mean digging up nearly every street in the four communities.

System was overwhelmed

The courts ordered the entire project because the original sewer system treatment plants at Deer and Nut Islands had been overwhelmed. They were not doing the job. They were dumping raw sewage into Boston Harbor. The harbor, he said, has already made a dramatic recovery because the dumping has been stopped.

The new primary sewage plant has large settling tanks which are designed to remove most of the solids from the effluent. MacDonald said the MWRA will be able to remove 50 percent of the pollution from the sewage.

The secondary treatment facility is designed to use microbes to eat much of the remaining pollutants.

The third treatment, he said would be to put the twice cleaned effluent into the controversial outfall pipe, designed to carry effluent into Cape Cod Bay. MacDonald said he felt comfortable that the current attempts by Cape Cod and South Shore communities to stop the outfall will be resolved.

Many opponents, he said, are surprised when he tells them that less pollution will occur by deliberately dumping cleaned water into the bay, than by past practices.

Before the project began, he said, much worse pollutants were being carried from the harbor into the Bay by the tides, currents and storms. Now the water will be sprinkled through some 50 outlets, along the last one and a half miles of pipe. It will be 85 percent clean. The water looks clear, like rain water.

Wilmington police were kept busy with numerous fender-benders during Monday's ice storm, including this one on Burlington Ave. Monday night. (photo by Phil Fenton).

Wilmington Community Television, Inc. (WCTV) is once again offering its basic access tv production courses. Classes are available to all Wilmington residents and persons affiliated with Wilmington based organizations.

Classes are scheduled to begin Saturday, January 22 and Thursday, January 27. Both classes will meet for seven consecutive weeks.

WCTV staff encourages current members to consider taking the course as a refresher and anyone who may have began a previous course and did not complete it, please take this opportunity to do so.

For more information or class registration, please call 657-4066.

1960 Falcon – $75 or B.O.

The January 23, 1969 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Selectman Charles Black sent word that after 33 years on the board, he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Paul Campos of Lawrence Street was serving at Keesler Air Force Base, Mississippi where he was undergoing training in communications electronics systems.

Anthony Martino of the firm of A&M Fenton appeared before the board of selectmen to speak briefly on an article being proposed for the annual town meeting for Garden Apartments on Woburn Street.

Stuart Neilson was pictured before his switchboard in Okinawa where he was serving as a telephone operator with the Sea Bees.

Students were pictured eating roast chicken in the basement of the Whitfield School where they were served lunches carried from the Wildwood School, amply protected by insulation and aluminum wrappers.

Howard Walden and John Elia engaged in a foot race the previous summer (1968). Walden won, causing John to accept a lot of kidding about being beaten in a foot race by a grandfather.

The two spent a 1969 Sunday in N.H., skiing and there is was a dispute as to who won a down hill race. Some said John won, but Howard was pictured gazing up the mountain after completing the course, watching for his not-yet-arrived opponent.

A&M Fenton advertised a ranch house in Tewksbury, breezeway and garage, etc, $165 per month.

A 1960 Ford Falcon, good transportation was offered for $75 or best offer.

Bonnie MacEachern & Dean Athanasia students of the month

The January 25, 1984 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

A proposal to extend the Woburn Street sewer north was made at the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners meeting. The proposed extension would relate to a new building for Avco as well as proposed housing for the elderly next to Eastgate Shopping Center. The proposal was made by John Lucci, housing authority member Dan Gillis and Charles Johnson of Avco.

Appeal by the owners of Mancini's Restaurant for the right to enlarge their building was still undecided. Chairman Bruce MacDonald of the Board of Appeals was reportedly discussing the case with Town Counsel Alan Altman.

Diane Chambers of Wicks Circle was accepted at Bunker Hill Community College, Boston.

Firefighter Lt. Bill Nee retired from the fire department.

Michael Mancinelli of Garden Avenue was elected a fellow of the Mass. Society of Certified Accountants; Inc.

Bonnie MacEachern and Dean Athanasia were selected Students of the Month at WHS.

Let's Workout

by Jeff Nazzaro

You've seen the ads. You've seen the hype. You've seen the inside of your left-over turkey and pie stuffed refrigerator at two in the morning. And yes, you've seen the scale. After the holidays, it's time to take a look inside the local health club-fitness center scene.

It's next to impossible to discuss fitness clubs without having marketing mumbo-jumbo drip like so many Ultra Slim-Fast "nutritious shakes" from the burnt-out rhetoric blender. Hopefully, we'll make this process somewhat simpler with this overview of the fitness centers in operation between Tewksbury and Wilmington.

There is definitely something for everyone interested in shaping up, toning down, getting ripped, losing weight, gaining muscle, having fun or simply achieving that taut, cut, six-pack abdomen of years (and beers) gone by. From hammer strength to funk aerobics, if it's the latest in health and fitness trends, chances are it's in Tewksbury or Wilmington.

Universe Gym and Aerobics, on Main Street in Tewksbury, is your not-so-average all-purpose gym. For one, there's the aerobics element. But while maintaining a serious weight training attitude and facility, the equipment is state-of-the-art and the atmosphere, helped along by a "juice bar," is pure 90's.

Owned by Danny Cudak and Jay Steinmetz and managed by Jeff Scott, Universe offers free and machine weights, stairmasters, lifecycles and treadmills, Reebok step, a full-range of aerobics programs (from beginner to expert) on a "3,000 sq. ft. floating wood aerobic floor," and a supervised nursery.

Unique to Universe is its Hammer Strength weight machines, which give a "more balanced workout because people are using both arms independently," according to Scott.

Across town on Andover Street is Results, a women's gym featuring circuit exercise on "pace equipment," which "exhausts the muscle," provides "cuts and definition instead of bulk" and "burns up to 20 calories per minute with no lactic acid build-up or soreness," according to owner Nina Liu.

Results also provides funk aerobics - which is "like a dance class," Liu says - calisthenics, step Reebok, Hi-Low impact aerobics, and the popular body bar sculpting (aerobics using an eight or twelve pound padded bar). Results clients may also take advantage of provided babysitting.

The NorthMeadow Club, the oldest in town, is under new management, as a bank recently assumed ownership.

General Manager John Harris says the club is "making repairs, cleaning things up and trying to reestablish some credibility" to the racquet and fitness club.

In addition to aerobics, cardiovascular equipment, free and machine weights, NorthMeadow also boasts tennis, racquetball and basketball courts, which help contribute to the club's wide-based membership.

"Court sports attract a much broader range of people," than just fitness facilities, Harris said.

In addition, NorthMeadow offers pools, sports leagues and of course, babysitting.

Across the town line in Wilmington, the Jazzercise Fitness Center, on Main Street, patterns its workouts around aerobics, with Jazzercise, Step Reebok and also circuit training, a combination aerobics and strength training routine.

A look inside the Jazzercise Fitness Center with owner Karen DiCecca instructing a class will show a small group of women having big fun. Child-care is available, too.

So there it is. Each club has its own style and some of the same perks, but, it's January. And January means one thing - besides snow and ice and wind and cold - resolution to trim the fat.

Get off that couch, trim that waist, pump those pecs and drink a glass of strained carrot juice.

Your local fitness club is hot. Hot people looking hot, feeling hot, being hot. It just makes you feel warm and fit all over during these wind-swept winter days.

YMCA fun

The Reading/Wakefield YMCA's and the Department of Social Services will be teaming together to provide families in the surrounding communities with an adventure based on counseling program.

The YMCA proposes to provide an adventure based counseling program for families at risk aimed at building self esteem, developing individual leadership and assertiveness skills. This unique program is based on the principle that self esteem and confidence are developed in individuals and in groups through progressive, successful experiences.

By involving each individual and family in a series of challenging but accomplishable activities that demonstrate each individual's ability to succeed, the program will build skills that are transferable to everyday life.

Families will have the opportunity to be involved in such challenging activities as hiking, canoeing, cross country skiing, the climbing wall and rope course. Families will also participate in swimming and community service.

"This type of program is perfect for those parents who may not have had a great deal of success personally or in the family level and wish to improve the quality of their family's life" says Kathy Kelly, ABC Program Coordinator.

"I enjoy this type of program because it allows me to be a part of assisting a family in learning new skills that will help them in their everyday lives."

Families who may be interested in this program need to be contacted with the Department of Social Services and children need to be at least eight years of age. Activities are held primarily on the weekend twice a month and a new session will begin in January.

Interested families may contact their social workers at DSS or contact the Reading YMCA at 944-7989 or the Wakefield YMCA at 245-9622 for further information.

Wilmington Jazzercise owner Karen DiCecca also instructs classes while shouting encouragement through a P/A system to her hard working students (photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

Freeze-proofing for even the coldest winter days

by Bill Conlon

Even the most ice-crusted Yankee in New England have to admit that it's been cold lately. Deathly cold..

The cold of winter can, and will, kill you. Cold kills without mercy or appeal and the crime of stupidity carries a death sentence.

But there are countless people who enjoy winter activities outdoors and they never seem to freeze, no matter how cold it gets. Why is that?

Simple. Winter can be fun, or it can be deadly. Know how the cold affects your body, learn the warning signs and know how to dress up for sub-zero weather, and you too can have fun this winter.

Look at it this way: Would you rather go outside and have fun, or would you rather spend the winter under house arrest, staring out the window and complaining?

Cold can kill or injure. The chill hits your body two ways: through frostbite and through hypothermia.

Hypothermia, or the lowering of the body's internal temperature, is much worse, so we'll do that first.

When it's hot, your skin oozes out water, which evaporates and cools the blood flowing beneath the skin. But when it's cold, you have no such mechanism for producing additional heat. The best you can do is 98.6°F.

When your skin becomes cold, the blood flowing under the surface also becomes cold. You can absorb part of that cooling, and your body will enlarge the blood vessels to deliver more hot blood to the surface. (That is why your hands turn pink when it's cold!)

But there's a thin line between cold and too cold. At some point, and it's different for everybody, your chilly blood starts lowering your body's internal temperature. Hypothermia has begun.

The Stainless Steel Warning Sign of Hypothermia is shivering. Never, ever ignore shivering.

When you exercise, your muscles produce heat. It costs you calories to generate that heat, but we'll make the assumption you're eating enough to stay fueled. (Oh, in winter your body can use fat as fuel if you're out in the cold frequently. The Inuits -- or "Eskimos" -- eat blubber, whale fat, with no heart problems. If you prefer pizza to salad during winter, listen to what Mother is telling you. Don't argue.)

When your internal temperature is starting to slip, your body will begin to exercise on its own. Involuntary muscle contractions -- shivering -- is a major warning. Pay heed. Get up and exercise, move around, run if you have to, or just get indoors.

As hypothermia progresses, you'll begin to feel lightheaded, confused, even sleepy. And the deadliest sign of all -- you start to feel warm. That means your body is cooling off at a dangerous rate, and the external cold is closer to your own dropping internal temperature. Bad news.

You'll feel sleepy, and want to take a nap. It will be a permanent nap.

Having suffered hypothermia on a chilly December day, I know from whence I write. I ignored shivering, and by the time I staggered back to the deer camp I was lightheaded and dizzy. It took two full days to warm back up, and I found that the chill knocked my immune system down. I had the nastiest cold of my entire life after that run-in with Old Man Winter. When I shiver now I get up, no matter if the world's biggest buck is 20 yards away in the final hours of the deer season. I shiver, I move.

Getting wet, by the way, is a death sentence. Heat will transmit through water much faster than it will in air, and your body heat will disappear in no time if you're wet. Get naked if you have to, but get dry. NOW.

Next comes frostbite, which is a cause of injury more than death.

Frostbite is when your skin freezes to the point where blood no longer courses through the capillaries. Not a good thing, at all.

Frostbite appears as white patches, normally showing up on extremities like noses, fingers, ears and toes. If you keep those parts covered and dry when the wind is icy cold, you'll probably avoid Jack Frost's teeth. The "wind chill factor" given on the news should be named the "frostbite factor." The wind chill is the effect the bitter air has on exposed skin. It feels like 50-below, and to bare skin it IS 50-below!

But if it's very, very cold, there's a chance that you can get frostbite on fingers even inside your gloves, or toes inside your boots! (It has to be deucedly bitter cold to cause that.) It doesn't hurt to check every now and again for white spots.

The remedy for frostbite is to get that body part warmed up, pronto! Do not rub the affected area with ice or snow, please. That's an old myth. Warm water is just fine, although it will feel scalding hot at first.

Frostbite left untreated may lead to tissue death. If your toes get nasty frostbite and then turn black, your doctor will give you some bad news. Gangrene might set in, so the toes will have to go. Sorry.

Be advised, however, that any area frostbitten once is forever at risk for another nip. A frostbitten area is the first to get frostbitten again.

So how do all these people enjoy winter? Simple. They dress for it.

The trick to winter dressing is to keep as much body heat as possible from escaping. You'll never keep it all inside, but the more you keep in the less work you'll have to do just to stay warm enough for survival.

Start from your skin and head out:

Long underwear (thermals, union suits) trap a layer of air against your skin. That's why thermal underwear is often made of a mesh-like fabric, to trap more air. Once that air is all nice and warm, you want to keep it from escaping.

The next layer is pants, and shirts. (Sorry, ladies, but I have no clue as to how you can insulate a skirt.) The fabric should be tight, to keep wind from blowing through and shoving out all your nice, warm underwear vapors. A set of outer pants, such as ski pants over blue jeans, is nice if you don't mind the extra weight.

A sweater or two also helps, again by trapping a layer of air. A thick coat on top of the sweaters will trap the maximum possible heat, and you should be all set. Fur coats are nice, and they look good, too, but it's the leather more than the fur that does the job. Leather blocks out the wind, which will steal your warmth.

There is one caveat, however. If you're going to be very active, you won't need to dress so heavily. But if you'll be motionless for any length of time, bundle up. It can be tricky to balance activity against clothing requirements, but you'll learn over time. Wind, as always, makes even a sunny and warm winter day seem cold, and windproof outer wear may be worth the extra expense.

Hats, in the winter, are mandatory. Your body sends enormous amounts of blood to regions above your neck, and all that blood will cool rapidly if left exposed to the air. Earmuffs are considered minimal headgear, since they leave the scalp bare. Who cares if you look good, so long as you're warm and safe?

Find the warmest boots you can for winter. I recommend the "Sorel" style boots, although the style has been widely copied. Thick felt liners in a rubber-and-leather outer shell, Sorels have become my favorite for ice fishing over the years. If you can't wear boots at work, keep a pair of shoes in the car then just change when you get there.

If your hands won't be exposed to the air, you might not need gloves. Again, lots of blood flows through the hands, and that's a lot of blood to be chilled. For clearing off the car, or any outside work, gloves are very helpful. Even better than gloves are mittens, which are easier to doff and don, plus you can ball up your hands for better warmth inside the mitts.

That should do it. A scarf to keep warm air from seeping out around your neck is nice, and sunglasses are very helpful to avoid snowblindness and fatigue.

If you can cover all those bases, get out and have some fun! You may find that cross-country skiing is more fun than jogging, with much better scenery (the "Nordic Track" machine duplicates the exercise) or discover the thrill of snowmobiling. Or you can join idiots like me on the ice and go fishing during the winter. Winter in New England offers too many fun possiblities to let it go to wastes. So go outside and play!

Brian Kingsley, on keyboard and vocals, had the crowd singing along to Irish favorites at the "sneak preview" opening of Maggie McKeever's Irish Pub, on Main Street in Tewksbury last Wednesday. The howling snowstorm outside didn't stop the big crowd from attending, with several visitors having to park at the Jade East and walk in. (Photo by Bill Conlon)

Tai Chi Chuan demonstration Jan. 27

Middlesex Community College (MCC) will offer a free T'ai Chi Chaun demonstration Thursday, Jan. 27 at 7 p.m. at the Bedford Campus, Springs Road, North Academic Bldg. #6. The public is invited to attend and learn more about this ancient Chinese health care tradition. Participants are encouraged to wear comfortable clothing and be ready to participate in the exercises.

T'ai Chi will also be presented as a 10 week course beginning Thursday, Feb. 3, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Bedford Campus. Course content includes the practice of exercises, as well as a discussion of the T'ai Chi philosophy.

Daily practice of T'ai Chi can lead to strength, improved health, balance and peace of mind. Individuals interested in stress management will find the course particularly useful. Slow, relaxed movements and deep breathing are central to the exercises. For more information or to register call 1-800-643-5739.

Companies can accept the Volleyball Challenge

Get ready for Triangle's Volleyball Challenge Saturday, Feb. 26 at Everett High School. Don't lose out on the chance to win a trip for two for seven days and six nights to Hawaii.

Volleyball expertise is not needed in this a day of volleyball fun and comraderie while benefiting hundreds of people with disabilities.

How does it work?

Each team manager forms a team of six to 12 players. All players participate in a volleyball fundraiser by asking for pledges from co-workers, friends and family. Obtaining support is easy. The more players on a team, the less each player has to raise to meet the minimum entry fee of $300. That amounts to only $25 in pledges from each player.

Challenge a rival company-person to play against your team on the day of the event.

Team managers whose teams raise $500 or more will be entered into a drawing for a fantastic trip to Hawaii. The Volleyball Challenge will begin at 9 a.m. and continue throughout the day. Approximately four games will be played simultaneously and games will be played in 60 minute intervals.

Team prizes include: $300, baseball cap for up to 12 team members; $400 t-shirts for up to 12 team members; $900 sweatshirts for up to 12 team members; $1,500 dinner for two for up to 12 team members; $2,000 athletic shoes for up to 12 team members; $4,000 personalized bike sweatshirts for up to 12 team members.

So round up a team or two, have fun and at the same time, benefit people with disabilities. To register, or for more information call Triangle at 617-322-0400.

Triangle Inc., assists more than 850 individuals with disabilities throughout 37 Greater Boston cities and towns. Currently, it provides five major programs and operates two community residences.

Triangle has placed more than 1500 individuals with disabilities into competitive employment. For more information on services for individuals with disabilities call 617-322-0400.

AUTOMOTIVE

Auto Sense

ON THE SIDE OF SAFETY

Some car manufacturers have already begun to meet new federal requirements for sturdier car doors and side structures. The new side-impact protection measures must be phased in between 1993 and 1996. They are intended to enable an automobile to withstand a broadside collision by another vehicle traveling 30 miles per hour. By adding stronger steel beams beneath body panels and extra padding to interiors, car makers can increase the chances that passengers will survive a side-impact crash in one of their automobiles. Side-impact crashes are second only to head-on crashes as the most serious type of traffic accidents. With the new side-impact measures in place, drivers and passengers will enjoy better protection of their chest and pelvic areas during collisions.

Are you considering a new car purchase this year? Before you make your choice, ask the trusted team of technicians at JIM'S AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE CENTER, conveniently located at 2184 Main St., Rt. 38. All our technicians are qualified specialists in their field, and they continue their training by attending regular seminars. We service all domestic and foreign makes here, so give us a try at 658-2120. Our hours are Mon-Fri 7-5; Sat 8-3.

HINT: Air bags only deploy in head-on crashes and are of little value in side-impact collisions.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?
by Edward H. Wilkens
PROTECTION OF PROPERTY

QUESTION: What should a homeowner do after a house fire? Should he leave everything alone?

ANSWER: In spite of what many people think, it is NOT TRUE that nothing should be touched after a fire. The idea that things should be left alone until adjusters can examine it is a myth.

The policyholder doesn't have any obligation to leave things undisturbed. Indeed, on the basis of his insurance he is actually REQUIRED to take steps necessary to prevent any further loss that may be sustained beyond the original fire. Protection of undamaged property should be accomplished as soon as practicable (with due regard for safety).

AFTER A FIRE, the insured should take all precautions to prevent further damage or injury.

Wilmington senior topics

Whist game Jan. 24

The next whist game will be held in the function room of the Senior Center, Mon., Jan. 24 beginning at 1 p.m.

Eat properly

The nutrition class will be held in the craft room Tues., Jan. 25 from 9:30 a.m. This is a very important class. What one eats and the amount of food consumed is important in preventing heart attack, stroke and cancer. To start a proper eating program alone is difficult, but it can be easier with others. Working in a support group is a great way to form the habit of eating a proper diet of healthy foods. The class is free and open to all Wilmington residents 60 and over.

Exercise classes

An important part of any health program is exercise. The Senior Center offers three excellent exercise classes each week and an exercise equipment room where one can exercise at their own pace any time between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Activity programs

The many activity programs available at the Center are free to all Wilmington seniors. They include weekly art, craft, ceramic, dance, exercise, nutrition, woodworking and upholstering classes; weekly bingo, blood pressure clinics and bi-monthly whist.

Meals program

The daily meals program Meals on Wheels delivers meals to homebound seniors while healthier seniors may eat together at the congregated senior lunch site in the high school. Both segments of the meals program require one to call a day ahead, or Friday if you wish a meal for the following week, 657-7595. If you have not called, please do not go to the school. The preparers use figures totaled at 9:15 a.m. Those who have not called, will not be included. The appearance of seniors who arrive without calling causes a great deal of turmoil at the center and for those preparing the food.

Social February 14

The therapeutic social for February will be a Valentine dinner dance at the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks February 14. A chicken dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Music will be provided for dancing. Signups for this social will be held Friday, Jan. 28 from 9:30 a.m. A $4 non-refundable deposit will be required. Table tickets will be given at that time.

Upholstering class

Every Thursday morning the upholstery class is held in the craft room beginning at nine. The class is free and is led by a a senior instructor who operates his own upholstering business part-time.

Share package

Those who volunteer their time to any community services for only two hours a month can qualify to receive $30-$35 dollars worth of food for only $13. A Share package can consist of meat, vegetables, fruit, rice or cereal and some specialities. If interested, call Deming Way for more information on the program.

obituaries

Meredith Elia Lee

Meredith (Elia) Lee of Wilmington, died January 13, 1994 in Winchester, after a motor vehicle accident.

Born in Woburn 36 years ago, Mrs. Lee is survived by her husband Michael and a son Maxwell. She also leaves her parents John J. and Marguerite (Ryan) Elia of Wilmington, and two sisters, Michele Jenson of Andover and Tara Elia of New York City.

A funeral service was held from the Nichols Funeral Home of Wilmington with the Rev. Michael Stotts of the Wilmington United Methodist Church officiating. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery.

Pallbearers for Mrs. Lee were Rick Howlett, Peter Jensen, John Paoletti and Mark Crowley.

Donations made to her memory to the Jimmy Fund, 1 Harvard Street, Brookline, Ma 02146 will be appreciated.

Evelyn T. Fiorenza

Evelyn T. Fiorenza, 86, of Lighthouse Point, Fl., died December 20, 1993 at Del Ray, Fl. following a brief illness.

Born in Hardwick, Vermont, Mrs. Fiorenza was a resident of Florida for the past 35 years and was formerly of Medford and Wilmington.

She was the widow of Joseph Fiorenza, Sr. and is survived by 13 children: Carl Fiorenza, Arlene MacLean, both of Md., Camille Evans, Maryanne Carey, Paulette Fiorenza, Edward Fiorenza, all of Fl., Anna Reinold of Stoneham, Evelyn DelToso of Winchester, Joseph and Albert Fiorenza, both of Wilmington, James of Andover, George of Medford, and Lawrence of Boston. Forty-six grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren also survive.

She was also the mother of the late Richard Fiorenza.

A memorial mass is scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 22 at the Church of St. Mary in Winchester.

Donations made in her memory to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, 170 Governors Ave., Medford, MA 02155 will be appreciated.

Elwood E. Gaskill

Elwood E. Gaskill, a resident of Wilmington for many years, died at the Wingate Nursing Home, January, 17,1994.

Born in Chicago, Ill, 87 years ago, Mr. Gaskill was a graduate of the University of Chicago and did post graduate work at Harvard University, graduating from Harvard in 1932. Dean Gaskill was Registrar of the New England Conservatory of Music for 17 years and served as choir master at Kings Chapel in Boston for 12 years, choir master at Harvard Chapel for 10 years and choir master of the Arlington Street Church in Boston for seven years.

He was active in the Harvard College Alumni Association and the Harvard Glee Club.

Mr. Gaskill is survived by his wife Kathleen M. (Homewood) Gaskill and was the father of Deborah "Debbie" Beals of Tampa, Fla., and Elwood E. Gaskill; Jr. of Maynard. He also leaves a step-daughter, Jean Quinlan of No. Reading.

Funeral services will be held at the Wilmington Congregational Church, Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington, Friday, January 21 at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Tom Dean, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in Wildwood Cemetery.

Visiting hours will be held at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rt. 62) Thursday from 2 to 4 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Second Wilmington Florida reunion

Such a good time was had by Wilmington folks who were in Florida last March that another get-together is planned this year on March 19. A meeting is scheduled around 11 a.m. at Shelter #8, Fred Howard Park, off Rt. Alt. 19 in Tarpon Springs, Florida. This is just west of Tampa on the Gulf Coast.

Take a picnic lunch and enjoy a fun-filled day, full of reminiscing with Wilmington friends and neighbors. The final tally of those who attended last year was 105.

The picnic shelter and restrooms are handicapped accessible. The park also has a playground for youngsters and a beautiful bathing beach.

Wilmington residents scheduled to be in that area on March 19 are not only invited, but urged to make plans now to attend.

The family of Jean Carrasco would like to thank the ambulance crew who responded to her medical emergency on January 1, 1994.
Your care and efficiency were very much appreciated.

Wilmington Youth Basketball

Wildcats belt Chelmsford, 40-23

Wildcats 40 Chelmsford 23

In a start that mirrored the cold weather, the young Wildcats had six turnovers and only scored one point in the first six minutes of play in this Wilmington Youth Basketball game played last week.

Coaches Tildsley and Kane wisely called for time out to settle down their players. With reassurance, the boys went out and played their game and chipped away at the Lions' lead and took control for another win.

Leading the offense with eight points each were Eric Swiezynski and Sean Quigley, followed by Marty Tildsley with five and Robby Wagg, Martin DeAngelo and Darren Aciero each with four points.

Jason Thresher contributed with three points and Danny Keating and Brendan Maillon with two. Joey Kane jumped high for the rebounds that spelled defense and Ryan Moroney stole the ball in an uplifting move for the team.

Wildcats 44 No. Andover 41

In what was the most exciting game of the season, the sixth graders experienced their first overtime, with the lead bouncing back and forth during regulation time before the team brought home another win.

Eric Swiezynski and Martin DeAngelo led the scoring with 12 and seven points respectively.

Being doubled teamed much of the time held Darren Arciero to five points. Sean Quigley, Jason Thresher and Robby Wagg led the rebounding and added four points each.

Marty Tildsley and Joey Kane directed defensive plays and contributed three points each and Ryan Moroney drove up the middle and added two. Danny Keating's consistent defensive plays kept his team from losing its edge.

All Around Travel Update

PICTURE PERFECT TRAVEL

Half the fun of going on vacation is enjoying the experience again and again through memories, and pictures can be the key to making those memories come alive. A few tips from the pros can help your pictures truly tell a story. Try to choose a single center of interest and make sure the scene behind it is as simple as possible so as not to detract. To accomplish this, make a habit of checking around the edges of the scene in your viewfinder for unwanted clutter before snapping the shutter. Another cardinal rule among photographers is to vary your point of view. Instead of taking every shot from standing eye level, experiment with getting down on one knee or surveying the view below from a window perch

Wherever you travel, photos make the best souvenirs. They'll bring back happy memories of places you've been for years to come. For the kind of travel that inspires memories that last forever, come see us at ALL AROUND TRAVEL. We offer you the fine, dependable service you deserve, all the time. Our professionals will work with you to find that special place in the world that you will never forget. See us at 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rt. 62). PH: 658-2313. Our services are many, but they cost you nothing. Open Mon-Fri, 9-5 and after hours by appointment.

HINT: Cameras that claim to offer "automatic composition" work by adjusting the picture frame to keep the subject at an optimum size.

Tewksbury Youth Hockey

Tewksbury Mites top Haverhill

Sunday night the Tewksbury Braves defeated Haverhill II, 4-1 in an exciting Mite instructional youth hockey game at Janas Rink. Both teams skated hard in the first period, but neither team could score a goal.

The Braves defense played a strong game led by Greg Degiso and Chris Lavita. The Braves went ahead 1-0 in the second period on a goal by Brian McGrath with the assist going to Eric Belmonte.

The Braves scored again when Ryan Harris was able to put it home from a scramble in front of the net. Assists went to McGrath and Belmonte.

In the third period the Braves went up 3-0 when Belmonte scored a goal of his own with assists by Ryan Harris and Jeff Luciano. Brian Little made the score 4-0 when he broke in alone on the Haverhill goalie to score his first goal of the year. Assists went to Joey Broderick and Michael Albano.

Goalie Steve Riccio played a great game, but lost his shutout bid in the last minute of the game as Haverhill scored to make the final tally, 4-1.

Wildcats nip Dracut

by James Pote

This past week the Wilmington High School varsity hockey team nipped Dracut, 3-2 on Saturday after losing to highly touted Central Catholic, 8-3 on Wednesday night.

Against Dracut, senior Andy Pagliarulo scored the game winner as he tipped home a slapshot from senior captain Mike Patterson late in the third period to get the Wildcats their fourth overall win.

Also scoring against the Middies were juniors Mike Barry and Mike Giodano, while goalie Jeff Morin came up with 17 saves.

Against Central Catholic the Wildcats were trailing 6-1 at one point with a goal from Pagliarulo, but the Cats were able to make it 6-3 with Pagliarulo's second goal and junior Charlie Ross' goal before Central put it out of reach at 8-3. Goalie Jeff Morin had 29 saves.

MVC hockey

Redmen dominate upstart Andover, 2-0

by Jeff Nazzaro

After out-skating, out-hitting and especially out-shooting Andover High School throughout the game, the Tewksbury Redmen hockey team finally connected on third period goals by junior Jim Hebert and sophomore Ben Christopher (a beautiful shorthanded strike) to beat the Golden Warriors, 2-0 Sunday afternoon in a Merrimack Valley Hockey League showdown at Merrimack College.

Tewksbury simply dominated a game coach Bob McCabe called a big one prior to tonight's (Jan. 19) battle with Dracut and former TMHS coach Don Ciampa.

"This was to solidify us a first place [standing] in [the Merrimack Valley Conference] Small Schools Division," noted McCabe.

Senior goaltender Brian Coyle appeared shaky at times, but was perfect when it counted in posting the shutout. Coyle received determined help from defensemen Claude Drevet, David Camilo and Tony Sala. Solid backchecking from all three forward lines, including a super play by Christopher that negated an Andover scoring chance.

For the most part, however, the game took place in Andover's end, as Tewksbury's first line of junior Brian Gangemi, senior Don Bibo and junior Peter Butt kept constant pressure on the Warrior defense, although coming up empty.

The second line of senior Ryan Columbus, Hebert and Christopher picked up where the first unit left off, but through two and a half periods came away equally frustrated by a combination of good goaltending for Andover and bad luck for Tewksbury.

But McCabe kept cheering his team on from the bench, shouting "keep pumping, keep pumping," at one point.

McCabe's squad did just that, with their hard work finally paying off at 2:40 of the final period, when Hebert, with help from freshmen Andy Beasley and Christopher, picked up a loose puck following a scramble in front of the Andover goal and made no mistake in burying the first Tewksbury score.

At 9:08 of the third, Andover, forced to play opportunistic hockey all afternoon, squandered one of the few opportunities they actually had, when an open shot from 15 feet sailed wide of Coyle.

The Warriors' last gasp would come after Bibo took a tripping penalty in the offensive zone that sent Andover on its second power play of the game.

But Christopher, with 3:28 to go in the game, not only negated the effect of the Andover power play, but also their chances for evening the score.

In a play McCabe called "a classic," Christopher stole the puck at his own blue line on the left wing and outraced two Andover defenders before cutting right, faking the goalie out of position and flipping the finishing touches on the Redmen victory into the far top corner.

After the game, McCabe related his team's inability to convert good scoring chances.

"We've had a problem early in the year scoring," he said.

But McCabe could not be anything but pleased with his squad's performance.

"We dominated," he said. "The kids are hustling and I see an improvement every game right now. We're two goals better than we played Matignon [a 4-2 loss in Tewksbury's first game this season]."

Tewksbury Senior Girls' Basketball

Cavs roll past Nuggets, 32-14

The Cavs continued unbeaten in the Tewksbury Recreation Senior Girls Basketball action with a 32-14 win over the Nuggets.

Sandi Allen, Jen Southard, Betty Gilpatrick, Keri Southard, and Nicole LeBoeuf led the Cavs' tough defense. Kate Kelley was high scorer. Julie Neary led the Nuggets in a solid team effort.

Trojans 28 76ers 15

The Trojans' offense was exceptional, helping them to an easy win. Caroline Lavoie was high scorer with nine points, followed closely by Miranda Robinson and Stacy Ennis. Nicole Venuti played a great offensive game.

The 76ers couldn't seem to pull it together on either offense or defense. April Lambert was high scorer with seven points. Solid efforts from Sara Keskula, Kristen Cronin, Lisa Marco and Jen Perrotti.

Crusaders 19 Kings 16

A great back and forth game with the Crusaders coming back in the fourth quarter. Erica Carney's four points in the last minute led to the win. Tiffany Driscoll was high scorer with seven points. Solid support was provided by Melanie Driscoll, Melissa Aliberti and Karen Segur.

The Kings played an exceptional defensive game led by Alison Kinnon, Leslie Keene, Courtney Winston, Erin Dineen, and Catherine Sheridan. Colleen Healy was high scorer with four points.

Sonics 32 Bucaneers 21

The Sonics took the lead early on in this fast moving game. For the Sonics, Jamie Frasca and Sarah Prifti both playing great ball, had to leave the game due to injury. Kristin Hurd with exceptional shooting led the scoring with 17 points. Christi DelleDonne and Amy Powers led the defense.

The Bucs really hustled as a team, led by Lauren Gustis and Kerry Ford.

Panthers 44 Huskies 7

The Panthers combination of a strong offense allowed them to run away with the game. Kelly Correia was high scorer and Lisa Parcella rallied the defense. The Huskies waged a spirited battle led by Tracy Bullen. Jen Gaipo was high scorer.

TMHS gymnasts impress

by James Pote

Thursday night at Wilmington High School the Wilmington gymnastics team played host to Tewksbury, and the Redmen, fielding a gymnastics team for the first time in 10 years, were very impressive in a 117-105 victory over the Wildcats.

The Redmen had many stars contributing to their first win of the season after opening meet jitters against the Dracut Middies.

"I set a goal of scoring in between 113-117 points (against Wilmington), offered Tewksbury coach Jennifer Tighe. "I'm very pleased, but there is still a lot more room for improvement," said the excited first year coach.

The meet started with the vaults, where the Redmen had a close 29-27 edge that included Dan LeBoeuf and Carol Seeley stealing the show with their 7.8 scores, while Wilmington's Bonnie Noel had the highest score with her 7.4 effort.

Next came the uneven parallel bars, where the Redmen took Wilmington, 30-24, making it a little bigger edge of 59-51, which included four different Redmen receiving scores in the seven range.

Amy Watson and Emily Henderson led with 7.5, while teammates Nicole Drevet scored a 7.5 and Seeley scored another high of a 7.3, while Noel led the Wildcats again with her 6.5 score.

The balance beam was extremely close, as the Redmen took this one by one point, 27-26 making the score 86-77 with one event left.

Amy Henderson of Tewksbury led with a 7.6 score, while Bonnie Noel again topped WHS with a 7.5 overall score.

With the floor exercises being the last event of the night, the Wildcats had to find some way to overcome the already impressive Redmen.

Emily Henderson paced Tewksbury with her 8.2, score which was the highest score of the night, with teammate Amy Watson right behind her with a 8.0 and Carol Seeley with a 7.5.

For Wilmington, they too had many solid efforts in the floor exercises. Bonnie Noel once again led with her 7.9 score as she led the Wildcats in every event, but Ann Dulong was right behind her with a 7.8 score.

Shawsheen Tech Students of the Month

Diane Murphy, daughter of Francis and Marilyn Murphy of Billerica and Shawn Mahoney, son of Elaine and Edwin Mahoney of Wilmington, seniors at Shawsheen Tech, are "Teenagers of the Month" for January, through a program sponsored by the Billerica/ Burlington Lodge of Elks.

Both Diane and Shawn have been honor roll students since the ninth grade and have been recipients of "citizenship awards" given to students teachers nominate as "pleasant to teach." Teachers of these young people say each has the ability to be successful in their chosen field.

Shawn Mahoney

Diane Murphy

Shawn Mahoney

Shawn Mahoney put his talents in Technical Illustration and Commercial Design to the test over the past two years at the district contest of Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA), and became a state competitor, last year winning the silver medal for his project in advertising design. The gold medalist became the mass. representative in the national competition, and that is Shawn's goal for this spring. His instructors believe he is capable of achieving that, and other goals.

"Shawn is one of the best students I've ever had, in 23 years of teaching," said Gene Hailson, citing Shawn's talent, attitude, and gentlemanly behavior. Fellow instructor Ethel Leary said Shawn is "one of the most talented and nicest students I've taught." He is always interested in the subject matter, asks questions to assure he understands the assignment, and is conscientious about his work."

Shawn is a member of the peer leadership group and works part time as an airbrush artist in a Somerville mall. In his spare time, he continues to draw and airbrush, although he also plays volleyball and enjoys watching sports on tv.

Shawn found his niche at Shawsheen and in advertising design, which he will pursue in college, possibly the Mass. College of Art. However, as an eighth grader, he wasn't even considering Shawsheen until his parents attended an open house and saw the facilities within the technical illustration area. "They were amazed, and came home and told me about it." he recalled. "I'm really lucky they went to the open house," he said, adding that eighth graders should "come out and see what we have to offer" before making a decision about high school.

"I'm doing exactly what I like to do," Shawn said. "I can't believe someday I'll have someone paying me to do what I love to do." When that day comes Shawn hopes he will be working at a large advertising firm, making a lot of money to buy not only a car, "but something really nice for my parents.

Diane Murphy

Diane is specializing in Cosmetology at Shawsheen Tech. Instructor Phyllis Mario, called Diane "an upbeat wonderful young lady. She has the ability to do well in this business." Working part time at a salon, Diane is well thought of by her employer, said Mario. "He likes her attitude and her work."

Murphy also is a member of the Shawsheen Tech Technical Skills Honor Society and taken an active role in her church, involved in activities about three times a week. Following graduation from Shawsheen Tech, she will go to Costa Rica for two months, working side-by-side with her sister, a missionary. Murphy plans to become an unpaid preacher for her faith,and support herself with a job in cosmetology.

Diane had more than the usual amount of first year adjustment to high school as a ninth grader, having been home schooled from the second to the eighth grades. "It would have been more difficult if I was shy," she said, "but I'm not," she added with a smile. She chose Shawsheen not only for the cosmetology education, but "my brother and sister came here before me, they both liked it, and they're both still using what they learned.

In her vocational program, Diane especially enjoys the creativity of cutting hair, "you can change a person's whole look with a haircut" - and because she likes being with people.

In her leisure time, she enjoys reading, drawing, playing the piano, hiking, writing poetry, skiing, "and being with my friends."

Dan Tracy, Tech guidance counselor who coordinates the awards program, said nominations are made by teachers on the basis of scholastic achievement, vocational ability, character, leadership and community activities. The Elks Lodge selects the senior of the year, who receives a scholarship from the fraternal organization. Mike Oulette, youth director of the Lodge, operates the program.

Shawsheen culinary to offer international week

A week of gourmet and international culinary menus will be available to diners at the student run restaurant at Shawsheen Tech from January 24 to January 28.

The Ram's Head restaurant will offer an Italian menu Monday, January 24; Chinese cuisine January 25; "The Traditional Americana" January 26 and Irish menu January 27, and a "Seafood Extravaganza" to cap off the week.

"These theme days give the students some exposure to cooking techniques from other countries," said chef/instructor Joe Williams. "By learning these techniques, they will become more valuable assets to their future employers," he said.

For same day reservations, call the Ram's Head restaurant at 667-2111 by 9:30 a.m.

Seventh graders discover personal qualities

Seventh grade English students at the West Intermediate School are discovering their own personality qualities and traits through written expression. Each student is authoring a manuscript entitled: Me: A self portrait.

Using a modern writing process students explore, discuss and respond to their world. Essays about people, personal relationships, trust, peer pressures, actual events in their lives, and human interaction are created through this process. Descriptive, expository, pursuasive, humorous and narrative writings are the tool used to give the student an opportunity to define how she/he perceives him/herself, others and ideas. Topics are stimulated by events, questions and personal feelings.

Students engage initially, in a prewrite process in which they list their ideas. Discussion of their first draft at a peer conference comes next, followed by editing and proofreading. During the final stage, the students enjoy the pride and satisfaction of "publishing" their writings before a live audience and experience literary recognition. An attentive audience, for sure, because each manuscript is uniquely different, an original!

Young widows, widowers

Young Widows and Widowers, Ltd. a non-profit, non-sectarian self-help support organization for younger widowed men and women, conducts weekly support groups in the communities of Andover, Braintree, Leominster, Lynnfield and Manchester, N.H.

A group for young adults (ages 18 and up) who have lost a parent is held on the second Thursday at 6:15 p.m. at St. Augustine's Parish Center.

Free speakers bureau

From breakthroughs in the diagnosis and treatment of illnesses, to the business the health care industry, Winchester Hospital offers a wide variety of discussion topics through the Speakers' Bureau. Through this program, qualified hospital health care professionals, physicians, nurses, therapists and administrators are available to speak to businesses, schools, civic and social organizations and other groups in the north suburban Boston area.

As part of Winchester Hospital's on going commitment to the community, this is a free service.

If you would like to know more about our Speakers' Bureau or receive a listing of the topics available, call the Public Relations Department at 617-756-2114. Requests should be made as far in advance as possible and at least a month prior to the meeting date.

Karen Larabee, center, an art teacher at the Wildwood School in Wilmington, accepts a gift certificate for her school's art department from Reading Municipal Light Department representatives Ann Marie Brennick, Public Power Week Coordinator and Board of Light Commission member William J. Hughes, Jr. The school received an award as a result of the winning t-shirt designed by Wildwood School fourth grader Stephanie Winn during the RMLD t-shirt art contest. The contest was held to commemorate Public Power Week and was open to fourth grade students in Wilmington, Reading and North Reading. This is the fourth year the RMLD has sponsored the program for the communities.

Tech career info mailed

Eighth graders from the Shawsheen Tech area may explore occupations first hand at the career Exploratory Program Wednesday, Jan. 26 from 6:45 to 9 p.m. at Shawsheen Tech. Snow date is January 27.

Letters were mailed home this past week, with detailed information for students and their parents. Visitors are urged to take questions with them to ask teachers or counselors January 26.

The program includes a hands on introduction for students to three of the schools' 19 vocational-technical programs, as well as information about academic classes, school schedule, and career and college options.

School administrators said many applications for 1994-95 have already been sent in; others are waiting until the career night to actually experience what Shawsheen Tech has to offer. Since the school has a high ninth grade enrollment this year, and anticipates the same next fall, school officials recommend early evaluation of high school options. Superintendent-Director Charles Lyons said the opportunity to see the school has been a factor in higher enrollments. "As more parents and students evaluate our programs and see the worth of our dual education option, we are reversing the low enrollment trend," he said.

A Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never found to fail)

O Most beautiful Flower of Mount Carmel, Fruitful Vine, Splendour of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this my necessity. O Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my Mother.

O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart, to succour me in this necessity; there are none that can withstand your power.

O, show me herein you are my Mother. O Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to Thee. (3 times)

North Shore Black Women's Association

"We have the same feelings and want the same things as the larger society"

By KEN MAGUIRE

"An individual has not started living until he can rise above the narrow confines of his individualistic concerns to the broader concerns of all humanity."

-Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Johnnie Knight, co-founder of the North Shore Black Women's Association (NSBWA), takes the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. to heart as she tries to improve the quality of life for black students.

Last year she helped form the NSBWA with mothers like herself in cities and towns such as Malden, Medford, Winchester, and others. A Malden native, she was always involved in her community but thought a regional group could better address the same concerns.

"We knew we had similar issues and similar goals," Johnnie said. "There are so many concerns; day care, violence, education. We have to ask 'What do we want for our children?'

"For instance, I hear a lot about gangs," she continued. "I personally don't know anyone who is in a gang. So how do parents, not being in that environment, help kids in that situation? I'm sure parents worry about these kids as much as people on the street do."

In less than one year, the NSBWA already has funded a college scholarship for a black student from Malden High School to attend the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. In addition, this past weekend at the NSBWA's first luncheon, Knight announced a donation from her group to a Malden Middle School program called "A Multi-Cultural Approach to the 21st Century."

The NSBWA, which also works toward assisting the elderly, was co-founded by Knight and Iodiah Henry, also of Malden. The other eight members are: Hattie Broome, Albertha Anderson, Yvonne Smith, Norma Stewart, Mary Moore, Dorothy Long, Marion Desmond, and Pauline Russell. The group officially formed last spring and came up with a mission statement.

"Our goal is to unite and strengthen the North Shore communities and its diverse population. To achieve this, we will focus our efforts on education, health, our youth and aging population through community development and social-cultural activities."

It was no coincidence that the NSBWA's luncheon was scheduled on the birthday of Dr. King.

"This is something we thought we needed to have in the community," Knight said. "It surprises me that it hasn't happened sooner. I think it's really important, when it comes to a black leader, that he reached the level he did and had such strong beliefs. When I listen to him, even today, it's like he's still here."

NSBWA member Hattie Broome, of Malden, said it's important that Dr. King's words and actions not be forgotten, especially when it comes to today's youth.

"I don't see how any black person could say 'no he hasn't affected me,'" Broome explained. "He was part of our lives and I think what we're trying to do is make sure that he lives on in our children also. Part of it is trying to keep our history alive."

Broome feels awareness is improving little by little, but has no illusions about racism being a thing of the past.

"People are becoming much more aware of other cultures, and that's good," she said. "I think it's going to be a continual struggle. But when you walk down the street as recently as a couple of weeks ago and kids are yelling racial slurs out the window, yes there is racism today.

"Each person on a daily basis has to work on changing," she continued. "I think education is the key. We have the same feelings and want the same things as the larger society."

Broome explained that some forms of racism are so subtle that people rarely notice. As an example, she cited a recent story in a Boston newspaper dealing with how parents should teach their African American children to act when they're in stores.

Therapy/support group for eating disorders

Several groups organized to help women with eating disorders will be offered at New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) this winter.

An Eating Disorders Group for Women Ages 20-60 will aid participants in better understanding both the behaviors and feelings associated with food-related problems, including anorexia and bulimia. Group members will explore the meaning that eating, not eating, binging and purging have assumed in their lives and how eating patterns are related to feelings, needs, relationships and self-esteem.

A Problem Eating Group for Girls Ages 13-18 is also available. This group is designed for adolescents who are struggling with issues of body-image and weight, including anorexia, bulimia and over-eating. Girls may attempt to gain control over changing bodies and relationships through their eating choices.

Another group for Women with Food and Weight Issues will also be offered. This group will be for women who have struggled with food, weight and body image issues over a number of years. Group members will share thoughts and feelings in a confidential setting where they can develop a better understanding of their eating and weight patterns, explore emotions and relationships in connection with these issues, receive support from others and develop ways to improve self-esteem.

All these groups may be covered by a participant's health insurance plan. Contact Dr. Beth Pinals at (617) 979-7416 for more information.

Gourmet Tasting Party in Lynnfield

"A Taste of Lynnfield," the second annual gourmet tasting party sponsored by the Lynnfield Educational Trust, will be held on Sunday, January 23, in the ballroom of the Colonial at Lynnfield.

Scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m., the tasting party will again feature gourmet foods and house specialities provided by local and Boston area restaurants and caterers.

Among the restaurants to be featured this year are the Colonial at Lynnfield, Weylu's, La Groceria, Legal Seafoods, The Continental, Angelica's, Union Oyster House, Daniel Fuller House, Towne Lyne House, Pizzeria Uno, Highland Cafe, the 99 Restaurants and Tiger Lily Caterers.

Desserts will be provided by Sweet Creations, Meletharb Ice Cream, PonteVecchio, Magnificent Muffin Shoppe, Zayde's and Farmland.

Donovan's Liquors of Lynnfield will again provide a sampling of fine wines from their various purveyors. Gourmet coffees and tea will be offered by the Magnificent Muffin Shoppe.

Background music will be provided by vocalist and pianist Noel Smith. Floral arrangements will be donated by Gregory's Florist, and the Item Press of Wakefield has donated ticket and program printing.

All food and services are being provided at no cost to the Lynnfield Educational Trust. Ticket proceeds will benefit the Trust's annual funding of student enrichment programs and other teaching projects proposed by Lynnfield Public Schools' faculty.

Tickets for "A Taste of Lynnfield" are $40 each or $75 for couples. Attendance will be limited to 250 people this year.

To purchase tickets, contact Jane Ellis at ((617) 334-4352 or Grayce Kushmerek at (617) 334-5102.

Great grandparents are Mrs. Mary Glenn of Nashua, New Hampshire and Mrs. Ann Devito of Everett.

Evening of Bluegrass at Linden Tree

The First Bluegrass Blast will be held on January 22 at 8 p.m. at the Linden Tree Coffee house in Wakefield. The concert includes some of New England's top bluegrass musicians.

Participating bands include: The Goodtime String Band, Yankee Division, Willow Creek, Cold River Bluegrass and a new group called Wild Mountain Honey.

The concert is intended to present a wide variety of instrumental and vocal styles and repertoire, somewhat akin to a bluegrass festival.

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse is located at 326 Main St., (Rte. 129), Wakefield. For details call (617) 246-2836. Admission is $6.

About The Towns by Phyllis Nissen

It's a zoo over there!

Grave doings in Burlington

Following a presentation by Cemetery Oversight Committee Chairman Frank Baxter, the Burlington Selectmen have voted to accept revised cemetery rules and regulations for the town.

Discussion focused on a regulation reading "non-residents, who have resided elsewhere for a year or more, and non-resident owners, shall pay an additional fee for an internment."

According to the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," Baxter noted that the $200 fee "is in effect $150 and it is not something new."

In response to Selectman Gary Gianino's question concerning what would happen to people who were residents lifelong - or at least for many years - if they were forced to leave town for medical reasons, Baxter replied that "nobody would fall through the cracks."

Lynnfield in business again

Lynnfield's Board of Selectmen and Executive Assistant Joseph Maney were surprised at one point recently by a School Committee decision to hire a new business manager.

Since the termination of School Business Services Director Edward Maguire early in November, a temporary consultant had been handling business.

According to the "Lynnfield Villager," Maney had been meeting with school officials to determine which functions of the school administration's business office would be consolidated with town hall and indicated that the School Committee decision was contrary to the spirit of those discussions.

Malden cheers Steinberg & kids

Malden's Fred Steinberg has just been elected to the Board of Directors of Handi Kids in Bridgewater.

A therapeutic, recreational program for children and young adults with any type of physical or intellectual disability, Handi Kids offers after-school programs, therapeutic horseback riding, weekend events, special Girl and Boy Scout troops, and a popular summer camp. Putting into practice the belief that recreation for all children is a need and a right, the program provides playing fields, an outdoor pool and a multi-service building complete with gymnasium.

Handi Kids always needs handy people. For information on how to volunteer, call (508)697-7557.

Quote of the Week

"Thomas Jefferson would be rolling over in his grave if he was buried in Massachusetts." (Woburn Mayor John Rabbitt at Woburn's 75th inaugural)

It's a zoo over there

What's new at Stoneham's Stone Zoo is actually a question of who's new - and there are several who's in the news: yellow-footed tortoises Butch and Sundance should, by now, be in their new home in the lower aviary; river otters and fishers will be a major part of the new Northern Forest Biome Exhibit; two Magellan geese and two male cavies (cousins of the guinea pig and capybara) have been added to the South American Grasslands exhibit; and 16 Chilean flamingos will be joining the American flamingos, presumably taking a stand together.

The zoo may not yet boast a partridge in a pear tree but Crown Victoria and Bali Myna chicks were recently hatched there. The four young llamas on loan from the Longneck Llama Ranch are wintering at home, and zoo officials note that the public should stay tuned for the arrival of Ariana's baby, and the announcement that Sterling and Coya are expecting.

Meanwhile, look for information elsewhere about the birthday party at the zoo on January 23rd, a "Major" event.

MWH offers Pediatric CPR Program

Very often, just by their nature, children are unfortunately vulnerable to serious injury. Although preventing childhood accidents is a top priority for many adults, it is not always possible. Knowing how to respond correctly and quickly in an emergency situation can help save a child's life.

The Pediatric CPR Program at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital offers important information on how an adult can help an injured child in situations such as drowning, electrical shock, airway obstruction and choking, and allergic reactions. The program emphasizes the prevention of childhood accidents and keeping children healthy.

The Pediatric CPR Program is open to parents, grandparents, teachers, day care providers and others who are interested in learning this life-saving skill for children. Those successfully completing the program earn a one-year card from the American Heart Association.

The program will be held on Fridays, February 4 and 11 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. and on Friday, February 18 and 25, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.. Those participating in the program can choose either the first two session or the second two. The course, conducted by Melrose-Wakefield Hospital certified instructors, is held in the MWH Family Education Center

The fee for this program is $70 per couple or $40 for singles. Registration is required. To register or for more information on the Pediatric CPR Program call the Childbirth Education Department at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital at (617) 979-3408 or (617) 979-3515.

Black Women's Association

From S-1

"The larger society does not do that with their children," she said. "So our children have to deal with the consciousness of 'okay, I have to act a certain way.' That relaxation is not there. It's a daily struggle. Some racism is so subtle the larger society does not realize it."

Does she see hope for the future?

"I'm a strong believer in God, so I believe that one day things will be equal," she said. "But I don't think all things are equal now. If all things were equal then all kids would be able to compete on the same level."

Broome has two children, both of whom are presently attending college. Johnnie Knight watched one of her three children graduate from college, another is currently attending school, and her third child is working in Boston. Other NSBWA members have younger children and can seek advice from those members who already have experienced such things as college headaches. "That's what makes it a good source," Knight said.

Among those in attendance at Saturday's luncheon were: Malden Mayor Edwin Lucey; Brendan Duffy, assistant principal at Malden High School; Louise Gaines, vice-president and director of personnel at Eastern Bank; and Kenneth Desmond, vice-president of sales at NYNEX Corporation and in 1967 the first black ever elected to the Malden School Committee, among other special guests.

The luncheon's guest speaker was Malden native Paula Sneed, who is presently the vice-president of General Foods in New York. In 1991 and 1993 she was included in Ebony magazine's top 100 black women in corporate America. She also was the recipient of the MBA Alumni of the Year award from Harvard University.

Sneed said Dr. King has had a "profound impact" on her life. "We have to be able to keep his memory alive," she said. "His legacy challenges each of us."

Sneed outlined Dr. King's beliefs. First, have "guiding principals - love your enemies." Next keep protest non-violent; make plans for the future; be prepared for the future; and be decisive, which she stressed as very important.

"Rosa Parks made a very simple decision," she said. "She decided to sit down on a bus." She recalled a reporter asking a black woman if she was tired of walking instead of riding the bus. Her response: "My feet are tired but my soul is at rest. I'm not walking for me, I'm walking for my children and grandchildren."

The last two lessons, she explained, were to have the ability to understand reality - "reality is temporary" - and develop characteristics which inspire others to action.

"I urge you to think about Dr. King's actions," she concluded. "Faith allows us to believe. He believed he had the ability to define the future."

Legislative Breakfast in Lynnfield

The North Suburban Planning Council (NSPC), in conjunction with the town of Burlington, will host a Legislative Breakfast to discuss key issues facing the subregion on Friday, Jan 28, at the Lynnfield Town Hall.

The meeting will kick-off at 8:30 a.m. with breakfast and remarks by a representative from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC), the coordinating agency for the NSPC and co-sponsor of the breakfast. Participants will also hear from NSPC Chairman, John Cashell. An open forum between legislators and local officials on the issues facing NSPC communities will follow.

The NSPC is one of eight subregions in the Metropolitan Area Planning Council's district. MAPC's subregional groupings allow for greater interlocal cooperation, and provide an important coordinating link between local municipalities and the region as a whole. During the year, NSPC communities have tackled a number of difficult issues including working to ensure that Industri-Plex Interchange allows for easterly access and the Regional Transportation Plan. Friday's meeting will allow legislators to become more familiar with the work of the NSPC and the issues and concerns that face the subregion.

Communities that comprise the North Suburban Planning Council include Burlington, Lynnfield, Stoneham, Wakefield, North Reading, Reading, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn. For more information call Joan Blaustein at (617) 451-2770 or Terry Szold, Planning Director, Town of Burlington at (617) 270-1645.

Candlelight Concerts at Old South Meeting House

The Old South Meeting House announces a new concert series for 1994 called Candlelight Concerts. This innovative new series features the New England Vocal Arts Ensemble and explores the growth and development of American music through a combination of narrative and musical illustrations.

New England Vocal Arts Ensemble, John LaBella, director, was founded in 1985 and utilizes the talents of professional and pre-professional singers. The three programs planned for the Candlelight Concerts reflect the extensive musical range and experience of Mr. LaBella and his group of musicians.

For God and Country on January 21 presents vocalists Paul Kirby, Frank Kelley, Paul Cummings and John LaBella in a performance of hymns, anthems and folk songs of 17th and 18th century America. Most of the featured songs were composed by Massachusetts natives - William Billings, Elkanah Kelsay Dare, Samuel Holyoke and Jeremiah Ingalls.

A New England Almanack, on February 11, will feature John LaBella in an award-winning song cycle by Massachusetts composer David Urrows based on poems from 19th and 20th century New England poets, including Robert Frost and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

The Old Maid and The Thief will be presented on March 18 and stars Paul Cummings, Linda Kates, Eileen Rush and Elizabeth Shammash in the first opera ever written for radio. This raucously funny, yet beautifully written opera was composed by American Gian-Carlo Menotti. This performance will recreate the original 1939 radio broadcast, complete with costumes and sound effects!

All performance begin at 7 p.m. at the Old South Meeting House, located at the corner of Milk and Washington Streets. Ticket prices are $7 (adults), $4 (children) and $5 (Old South Meeting House members). Series subscription are available for $18. For additional information or to order tickets call (617) 482-6439.

Is owning a home still a good financial investment?

During the 1980s, conventional wisdom held that buying a home, waiting a year or so and then selling it was the best "get rich quick" strategy to take advantage of skyrocketing home prices. At the very least, real estate has always been a good, safe investment. But with a sluggish, economy, some potential home buyers are asking if it still pays to own a home.

Owning a home, along with steady employment and obtaining an education, is a component of the "American Dream." These goals are what most people consider necessary for long-term financial security. Of these, home ownership probably is the most difficult to achieve.

"But low mortgage rates have made home ownership more affordable now than at virtually any point during the 1980s," Christopher M. Barrett, president of the Eastern Middlesex Association of REALTORs® says. "Most economists believe that the economic advantages of home ownership remain hard to beat. Real estate is still a respectable shelter for savings. Add the rent you would pay if you didn't own plus the generous tax breaks still allowed under federal and some state laws for mortgage interest payments and property taxes – and the family home looks pretty good."

The monetary value of home ownership is measured by both the equity built over the years and the tax benefits. "These are tangible benefits realized from the time you buy until the time you close on a sale," Barrett says. "In addition, prospective homeowners should consider the less tangible benefits such as privacy and establishing roots in the community."

Prospective homeowners should view paying off a mortgage as a forced savings plan," Barrett advises. "Your equity then gives you extra borrowing power -- important to consider if you're planning to send children to college. In addition, you'll most likely already own that home when retirement rolls around, which will greatly lower your housing costs. If you trade down to a smaller home, you may walk away with a sizeable return on your original investment besides."

As a homeowner gradually pays off his mortgage, he builds up equity -- money available to him when he sells. In addition to equity build-up, owning a home results in more savings than renting does, as much as 30 percent. When renting, the monthly payment doesn't build resources for the future. Actually, a renter is helping to buy the property for the landlord.

MUSIC, MAGIC & MORE DEBUTS

Accustomed to being plugged into TV and video song and dance programs, kids will now have an opportunity to experience their favorite artists live in a true theatre setting each month.

The Children's Museum launches Music, Magic & More, a performance series for families that combines the talent of top-line children's recording artists, with roving magicians, guest emcees, opening acts, music-related activities and more, creating a complete arts experience for the younger set at each show.

The Berklee Performance Center is the site for the series.

Kicking off the January 22nd premiere will be Walt Disney Records' Parachute Express, a nationally known singing trio who appear frequently on the Disney Channel. Craig "N Company is slated for February 19. The opening act for the first show is the internationally known Little Theatre for the Deaf.

Tickets to Music, Magic & More are available now for all performances at The Children's Museum, The Berklee Performance Center Box Office, at all Ticketmaster outlets or by calling Ticketmaster at (617) 931-2787. Ticket prices are $15 and $12.50 for each individual performance.

ESTHER'S STORY IS COMING

On Sunday, February 13, the multi-media Esther's Story will be presented for all interested area residents at Temple Emmanuel in Wakefield at 2 p.m.

Esther's Story is based on the diary that Esther Lore Cohn kept from 1939 to 1942. Though she died in Auschwitz at age 18, her childhood memories of the Nazi era live on through the diary.

Esther's Story is performed by Madeleine Beresford of Galapagos Puppet Theatre. Esther was Beresford's aunt. In her diary, Esther powerfully describes the conflicting emotions that characterize her experience.

She was, on one hand, a teenager just coming into her own, full of excitement about school, boys, family and growing up. On the other hand, she had polio, she was living in a children's home in Munich as the Nazis rose to power and she was Jewish.

Beresford performs with a life-size puppet, slides of concentration camp art, photographs of deportations and of Esther's family before and during the war, and interviews with Esther's surviving sister and father's second wife. A grant from the Henson Foundation helped make this show possible.

Esther's Story is intended for adults, teens and students grade 3 and up. All ages will find this presentation unforgettable.

Reservations are recommended. Tickets may be reserved by mailing a check payable to The Sisterhood of Temple Emmanuel. Admission is $5 per ticket if prepaid by February 1. After that date tickets will be $7.

Temple Emmanuel is located at 120 Chestnut Street, Wakefield. For more information call (617) 245-1886 or (617) 246-2836.

AUDITIONS FOR 42ND STREET

The North Regional Theatre Workshop, Inc. has announced auditions for 42nd Street on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 1 and 2, at 7 p.m. at the Wilmington High School Auditorium, Route 62, Wilmington.

Call-backs are planned for Thursday, February 3. All roles are open. Singers should be prepared to sing a selection from the show (sheet music will be provided). Tap dancers should bring their tap shoes, and all auditioners should come dressed comfortably, and with shoes they can move in. Not all roles require tap or other dance experience; there are non-singing and non-dancing roles.

Rehearsals will begin the following week in North Reading, two to three evenings per week. Show dates are slated for May at Wilmington High School. (Actual dates will be available by auditions.) For questions regarding auditions, please call (508) 681-0355.

COMMUNITY AWARENESS PROGRAM ON PARENTING

Phillip Mann, LICSW, BCD will be presenting "Discipline: Setting Limits with Love" on Monday, January 24 at 7 p.m. in Ryan Hall at AtlantiCare Hospital, 212 Boston Street, Lynn.

This program will offer valuable information about effective parenting and how to best discipline an adolescent. "We will review the basic principles for changing behavior and practical skills for helping you and your child through the discipline process," said Mann, Coordinator of the Child/ Adolescent Outpatient Mental Health Service at AtlantiCare Hospital.

For further information about this program, please call Anna Leone-Moore at the Mental Health Community Line, (617) 477-5050.

THE ALLIANCE FOR THE MENTALLY ILL

On January 24th the Eastern Middlesex Alliance for the mentally Ill (AMI), a family-based organization for mutual support and advocacy for the psychiatrically disabled, will meet at 7 p.m. at Horizon House, 21 Water St., Wakefield.

Nancy Parnell-Sovner, Director of Residential Services for Tri-City, which manages several residences in the E. Middlesex area, will explain the new program of Dual Diagnosis treatment in a local residence. The public is welcome, especially families and friends of people with mental illness. For more information call (617) 944-6158.

FREE! TAKING CARE OF YOURSELF LECTURE

As part of Winchester Hospital's "Taking Care of Yourself Health Education Series," a special free lecture will be held on the topic of "Exercise and Fitness."

Community members who made getting in shape their New Year's resolution, won't want to miss this important lecture.

This free lecture will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Winchester Hospital Breast Care Center, Baldwin Park II in Woburn. To register, call (617) 756-2220.

School Notes

Does Reading DARE to change?

Wilmington is all eyes & ears

Wilmington's North Intermediate sixth graders have been involved with an interdisciplinary unit on disabilities.

English and reading students wrote about, studied vocabulary pertaining to and read Helen Keller's life story while science classes studied the composition and function of the eye and ear. Library students worked with Braille alphabet and sentence cards attempting to decipher Braille messages, and all students heard two speakers talk about how they deal with disabilities.

Dee Genetti, mother of sixth grader Blake Genetti and chairman of Wilmington's Commission on Handicapped Affairs, spoke about her recent blindness and spinal cord injury; and Gloria Evans, Community Education Coordinator for Mass. Commission for the Blind, brought her seeing eye golden retriever Joe - and spoke about how it has felt to be blind since the age of two.

Students were encouraged to ask questions and examine some of the tools used to deal with disabilities.

Classy dining in Burlington

Burlington High students of all classes and Burlington's senior citizens from all classes have discovered each other, thanks to Lahey Clinic's head of volunteer services Kate Hartig and volunteer coordinator Margot Girodet.

"Senior dinners" which take place on Tuesday evenings from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. offer balanced nutritional meals for those over 55 at a small fee; entertaining informational programs featuring Lahey speakers on senior issues; and an opportunity for intergenerational friendships.

Burlington High students volunteer to carry trays, serve coffee or sit and chat.

The Burlington High programs coordinator is Laura Schnell, and her volunteers include: Payal Agarwal, Monna Gandhi, Rachel Geffen, Stacey Harrison, Kimberly Hyam, Nicole Barry, Jen Tripodi, Mandy Algeri, Kay Desai, Summer Harrington, Mary Keating, Jen Martin, Tracey Murphy, Jamie Kelley, and a host of pianists and musicians.

Heart to Heart in Stoneham

According to Stoneham High Principal Tom Ryan, as it stands now, the Heart to Heart program will be presented at Stoneham High for the second year in a row this spring, in spite of all those "Letters to the Editor" in the Stoneham "Ir.dependent."

Honor Society in Wakefield

Inductees to the Wakefield branch of the National Honor Society are Alexis Bailey, David Ball, Jennifer Casoli, Gregory Beutner, Nicole Mihalka, Alison Currier, Scott Simpson, Carolyn Gerrior, Barbara Cassidy, Richard Cook, Michele Huber, Kathleen Kannler, Ellen Koch, Clarence Lai, Beth LaPierre, Stephanie LeClair, Eric Lyons.

Also, Douglas MacDonald, Catherine Yen, Stephen Maguire, Jeffrey Hardacker, Thomas Grace, Danielle Mokaba, Michael Monteforte, Elizabeth Newman, Peter Richard, Wendy Silva, Erik Sorenson, Rachel Spear, Danielle Toth, and William Wallace.

Diane Lind is Wakefield's National Honor Society advisor.

Reading eyes change to DARE

In his proposed 1995 budget, Reading Police Chief Ed Marchand has suggested Reading become part of the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program which brings police officers into the classroom to talk about the dangers and illegality of drug use.

A national program, DARE is funded in 280 Massachusetts communities but has been subject to debate in Reading which already has a substance abuse advisory council headed by Reading Health Department officials and composed of school officials, citizens and a police officer with input from Reading High students.

Because DARE funding is usually split between state and local government, Marchand feels Reading is missing out on many state dollars because it cannot apply for DARE grants.

Woodchips
ANTHONY MANCONI

At the annual birthday party for my late mother, my brothers, sisters and I would sing a song to her and my father would walk out of the room. He was a good, hardworking father but wasn't sentimental at all.

This is what we'd sing, "Pal of my cradle days, I've needed you always. Since I was a baby upon your knee, you sacrificed everything for me. I stole the gold from your hair. I put the silver-threads there. I don't know anyway I could every repay, Pal of my cradle days."

My mother was tall, redhead and Irish. She had the beautiful voice of a Jeannette McDonald and the tender, loving care of an Irene Dunne of "I remember Mama" fame.

She shared her loved equally with those who excelled scholastically or were gifted musically. She comforted me knowing I wasn't one of those. I give glory to God for the talent and thanks to a wonderful Irish lady from Winchester who encouraged me to write poetry and my Woodchips column. I also thank and am grateful to my Editor for publishing and my readers who write to me, "pro and con," I love you all...

George Guyette of Winchester said to me, "Chipper, it may be true that French and English school children are ahead of their American counterparts in Math, Geography and the Sciences. But I'm willing to bet that none of the foreign school children can beat any one of my five children in selling "candy mints," "Tootsie Rolls," or "chocolate chip cookies" for school fundraisers!"

A few retired readers have asked for a puzzle or two for them to solve during the cold winter months. Here are three and the answers will be at the end of the column, just before Dreamboats and Superstars.

1. A hen and a half, lays an egg and a half, in a day and a half. Question - how long will it take the hen alone to lay a dozen eggs?

2. Remember the school days and the poem, "Thirty days hath September, April, June and November, all the rest have thir ty one. Question - which have 28 days?

3. Do they have a 4th of July in England?

Kathy and I went to a New Year's Day Party. She wore what is called a "peek-a-boo" dress. Some of the men peeked, then booed.

When Bette Coughlin heard a couple of curse words from her son, Michael, she exclaimed, "Good gracious! Where did you learn such terrible language?" "From Santa Claus." "What do you mean?" she asked. "Well, Mom," Michael explained, "Christmas Eve Santa came into my room for something and he stepped on some of my marbles."

Kathy told me in November that it's customary to give a girlfriend, sweetheart or wife a diamond for Christmas. "But, I gave you one thirty years ago!" "Yes," she replied, "you must have gotten it in a box of Cracker Jacks!"

Well, Christmas Eve I handed her a present saying, "Here, dear. There are 13 beautiful diamonds in there." She opened the present, then screamed so the neighbors could hear, "Why you idiot. It's a deck of playing cards!"

If any of my readers remember this food order, "Adam and Eve on a Raft," you may also remember those delightful eating places called Diners. There was at least one in almost every city and town in the whole United States. The one I recall was owned and operated by Frank Betram and his wife, Donna. Boy, oh boy! The customers got more than a cup of coffee and a donut there. They got some homespun philosophy that wasn't taught in any school or college.

I asked him one day, "How about a little service, Frank?" He shouted, "You got service when the door opened." He told a politician, "I wouldn't vote for you if you were the Angel Gabriel." "Frank," the politician replied, "If I were the Angel Gabriel, you wouldn't be in my constituency."

I assure you it wasn't often that anyone got the upperhand with Frank Betram or his wife, Donna, either. Now Folks, if any of you know any of those short order cook calls please send them to me, Woodchips, 68 Bosson St., Revere Beach, MA 02151. Thank you.

Football is a game where it takes four quarters sometimes to finish a fifth... I remember when there was a fire at the Old Howard (a Boston Burlesque Theatre). The firefighters came and put the fire out in 10 minutes and it took two hours to put the firefighters out... Kathy puts so much body lotion, cold cream and coconut oil on at night she "slides" out of bed every morning.

Hollywood producers are finding it almost impossible to fine replacements for the talented Roy Rogers and Gene Autry. The trouble is, where are the handsome cowboys who can sing, shoot and play the guitar while riding a horse?

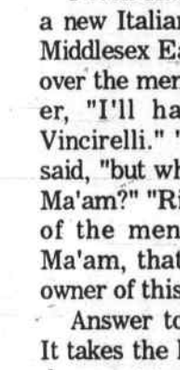
Bob Thaves wrote in Frank and Ernest, "There is no 'U' turn on the highway of life."... Folks, why is it that people who snore fall asleep first?

I took Kathy out to dinner to a new Italian Restaurant in the Middlesex East area. She looked over the menu and told the waiter, "I'll have the Spurmoni Vincirelli." "Scuza," the waiter said, "but where do you see that Ma'am?" "Right here on the top of the menu." "Scuza again, Ma'am, that's the name of the owner of this restaurant."

Answer to puzzle number 1 - It takes the hen 18 days to lay a dozen eggs; number 2 - Every month of the year has at least 28 days; number 3 - Yes, they have a 4th of July in England. It comes after the 3rd of July, every year.

Dreamboats: Annette Cross and Jen Jones, North Reading; Julie McLaughlin, Reading; Patricia Millward, Tewksbury.

Superstars: Gerry and Kathy Gately, Woburn; Frank Hughes, North Reading; Bill Boivin, Winchester; Brian and Jay Boyle, Woburn; Darlene Donovan, Saugus.



I didn't know that!

United Way and NFL on the Same Team

(ARB)—The longest punt in NFL history was 98 yards kicked by Steve O'Neal of the NY Jets September 21st, 1969 in a game against the Denver Broncos. This year's football season kicks off the 20th anniversary season of a partnership between the National Football League and the United Way of America. The relationship was formed in 1973 to raise the public's awareness of health and human service issues facing the country. Every year, for the past twenty football seasons, the NFL has donated airtime to the United Way at no cost.

A Look Back

This year, the NFL/United Way public service spots shown during NFL football games feature a look back at the more than 700 public service spots filmed in the past 20 years. Many of these ads feature players and their families that have appeared in previous spots over the past two decades. Each season, new ads are produced featuring NFL stars and coaches.

"The United Way series has set the NFL apart from all other sports leagues in a unique way, and it is something for which we are extremely proud and thankful," said NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue. "The NFL/United Way public service TV series is a most treasured, effective and eloquent communications opportunity, not only in sharing the United Way message, but also in providing community service involvement and recognition for the NFL," said United Way of America President and CEO Elaine L. Chao.

The commerical airtime, valued at more than $45 million, is furnished at no cost and spokespersons volunteer their time. The United Way of America supports more than 47,000 local health and human-care programs around the nation.

MOVIES

"Philadelphia"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Philadelphia" Starring Tom Hanks, Denzel Washington, Jason Robards, Mary Steenburgen, Antonio Banderas. Directed by Jonathan Demme. Written by Ron Nyswaner. Produced by Edward Saxon, Demme. Rated PG-13.

No one wants AIDS. And no one wants to deal with AIDS or allow it into their lives in any form, especially not as part of an entertainment. Most people cannot even stand to hear about it, let alone be near someone with it. For these reasons, Hollywood has never tackled this disease in a major motion picture.

"Philadelphia" can't redress all the sins of omission committed by the dream makers in LaLaland, but it surely tries. It covers the hatred, paranoia and ignorance surrounding AIDS; the "straight" victims of the disease; and the very personal effects this plague has on people. Director Jonathan Demme sometimes stumbles while trying to pack it all in, but he is very successful at moving his audience. It is doubtful that anyone could watch this movie and not be touched by it, or at the very least, educated by it.

Tom Hanks plays the Philadelphia lawyer who is fired from a powerful firm just after being given a major promotion. Hanks says he was let go because he has AIDS, the firm's senior partner, played with stubborn self-righteousness by Jason Robards, insists it is Hanks' incompetency.

Fighting for his reputation, and his legal rights, Hanks hires ambulance-chasing Denzel Washington. Washington plays a guy with clear homophobic tendencies and no desire to let a gay, infected man into his life. A twist of fate shows Washington that no matter what he thinks of Hanks' lifestyle, there are laws that protect people from discrimination, even if one has to fight for them.

What looks like a cut and dried courtroom drama is, in fact, one of the most effective and emotional films to come down the celluloid pike in a long time. Hanks, gaunt and covered with lesions, is nothing short of amazing as he inhabits the failing body of a dying man. The scene in which Hanks tries to explain his favorite aria to Washington, an aria he may never hear again, is breathtaking for both its simplicity and its depth.

Throughout this tangled story, Demme uses flashbacks, unusual camera angles, and unforgiving close-ups to tell both the personal and professional side of Hanks' tragedy. Writer Ron Nyswaner skimps on none of the details, no matter how uncomfortable, angry or depressed they may make us. The problem with covering everything from the intrusiveness of the disease to the intrusiveness of society on judging someone with it, is Demme sometimes spreads things a bit thin. Each scene may be effective, but you begin to feel emotionally drained about three-quarters of the way through.

Casting for this film was nothing short of brilliant, from Joanne Woodward as Hanks' supportive mom to baby-face Mary Steenburgen as the shark-like defense attorney, Antonio Banderas is Hanks' healthy, handsome partner and Washington turns in yet another charismatic, multi-layered performance.

The film, however, belongs to Hanks. Hanks will get under your skin, even if you are immune to courtroom antics or scenes of outright prejudice. Just watch Hanks' eyes in the library scene as his character again stands his ground in the face of ignorance and bigotry. His nearly imperceptible squint is such a little gesture, but it carries us through the scene. Hanks carries us through the entire film with similar, exquisite moments. Just bring a hanky to watch him.

Short Takes

The Piano is a remarkable, sensitive and insightful film starring Holly Hunter as a mute Scottish women who travels with her daughter to New Zealand for an arranged marriage. She finds prosperity in the house of her new husband, Sam Neill, but passion in the arms of half wild Harvey Keitel. A brilliant and heart-wrenching story of desire, repression and suppression, it may be best remembered for Hunter's silent, compelling performance as a 19th century woman trying to find her own voice. Rated R. ****

The Air Up There stars Kevin Bacon as a motor-mouthed, assistant basketball coach who follows a long shot of a lead to Africa in the hopes of finding a star for his college team. Not only does he find the charismatic and talented Charles Gitonga Maina, but he learns a few life lessons along the way. The movie dribbles predictability across the screen, but it is also winsome and well acted. Rated PG. ***

Tombstone so wants to have the last word about the Gunfight at the O.K. Corral, but lacks the depth to be anything more than an overly long period sketch. Diehard western fans will certainly enjoy the look of this violent oater, and Val Kilmer's enigmatic Doc Holiday is truly memorable, but this is a no brainer. It's both aesthetically pleasing and convincingly performed, but can't hold us as the action dissolves into a melodramatic horse opera. Rated R. **

Grumpy Old Men is a strained romantic comedy featuring Ann-Margaret as an eccentric widow who brings out a juvenile competition between cantankerous neighbors Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau. It is not funny or heartwarming to watch a couple of elderly men hurl insults at each other. There is a lot of wasted talent in this gooey vehicle, not the least of which is Ossie Davis as a dignified old charmer, or Daryl Hannah as Lemmon's unhappily married daughter. Rated PG-13. * 1/2

The Pelican Brief features a believable Julia Roberts as a terrified law student whose life is endangered when she pieces together the conspiracy of two assassinated Supreme Court Justices. The fun here is in the chase. That and the chemistry between Roberts and Denzel Washington's investigative reporter hoping to crack a scandal of Watergate magnitude. The adaptation of John Grisham's churning thriller is rather watery, but you can't help being caught up in the action once this game is afoot. Rated PG-13. ***

A Perfect World is a moody character study disguised as a manhunt for an escaped convict in 1963. Unfolding across a dry Texas backdrop, criminal Kevin Costner forges a relationship with his young abductee, T.J. Lowther, a fatherless boy who bonds with his charming kidnapper. Clint Eastwood and anachronistic feminist Laura Dern track their man as director Eastwood creates another anti-violence film, only this one amazingly is subtle and profound. Though overly long, it is an astute and thought-provoking drama. Rated PG-13. ****
